Big 4 Relations At Postwar Low After USSR Blast

Savage Attack May Mean End Of Conference

Molotov Assails German Policies

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—A savage Russian attack against the United States, Britain and France tonight reduced Big Four relations to the lowest point since the war and threatened an almost immediate breakup of the London session of the Foreign Ministers conference.

The most acrimonious Foreign Ministers meeting ever held ended abruptly, official observers said, when British Foreign Secretary Bevin termed Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's attack on Allied policies in Germany "insults and abuse." United States Secretary of State Marshall declared the attack made it "difficult to inspire respect for the dignity of the Soviet Union."

Conference sources said Molotov tossed his conciliatory attitude of the past few days out of the window and launched an hour-long attack.

He accused the Western Powers of making "enormous profits" out of Germany through "hidden reparations." He also declared that the United States, Britain and France were trying to "perpetuate the division of Germany"—as part of a strategic plan to employ their occupation zones against what he described as the "democratic countries of Europe."

Assault Is Unexpected

The sudden unexpected verbal asault by Molotov came during a conference showdown on reparations and made it clear the "cold war" for Europe would be fought out on the basis of the Marshall plan and the so-called "Molotov plan" of co-operation among the Soviet-dominated planned economy states of the East.

A bridge between the two through Big Four agreements on Germany appeared completely impossible following the meeting's developments. There were indications that Molotov's switch from conciliation to an uncompromising offensive had come at the direction of the Kremlin.

Soviet sources indicated Molotov had torn up a speech prepared for use yesterday and made a completely new one. The official Soviet monitor usually releases Molotov's speeches during or just after a conference session but it was without a text three hours afterward tonight.

Before today's session, Soviet sources had circulated a report that Molotov might offer to defer Russia's $10,000,000,000 reparations claim, if the conference would agree to immediate establishment of central economic and administrative agencies for Germany.

Marshall Urged To End Conference

When Molotov made his speech, however, he stood firm on the Soviet demand for $10,000,000,000 reparations for the USSR and Poland, including those from current production. Both Marshall and Bevin have declared this demand completely unacceptable. The American

Panama Police Battle Students; 25 Are Injured

PANAMA, Panama, Dec. 12 (AP)—Twenty-five persons were reported to have been injured today in a street battle between police and university students who protested a new agreement to lease Canal defense bases to the United States.

Santo Tomas Hospital dispensary said the 25 included eight policemen, three hospitalized; seven students, one operated on for a bullet wound in the spine, and 10 civilians, none hospitalized.

Earlier, Socialist Deputy Jose Brower had told the National Assembly five persons had been injured. The demonstration developed as the assembly met for submission of the agreement. Brower said he had seen police firing pistols at women and children.

The Assembly adjourned at 6:15 p. m. and the crowd dispersed.

Labor, Government Each Claims Victory As Rome's Strike Ends

BACK IN HOSPITAL—Because he's "not doing well" after a second operation, Forest "Nubbins" Hoffman is back in a Denver hospital for observation and possible further surgery. In November, 1944, the Cheyenne, Wyo., youngster aroused nationwide sympathy when he had an early Christmas because it was feared he would die before the holiday. An operation saved him then. Nurse Lucille Taucher is with the six-year-old boy.

Workers Ordered Back By Chamber

ROME, Dec. 13—(AP)—Rome's 48-hour general strike—the latest battle in the left's "winter offensive" against Premier Alcide De Gasperi's Christian Democratic government—ended at midnight with both sides loudly claiming victory.

A secretly-printed extra edition of the Christian Democratic party's newspaper Il Popolo, on the streets just at 12 o'clock, said in big black headlines, "Strike Fails!"

But the Communist-controlled Chamber of Labor of Rome Privince, which ordered 500,000 workers out Wednesday night to back up its demands for sweeping winter unemployment relief, asserted in calling them back that the government had yielded all along the line.

The chamber's vote to end the strike, ratified later by assembled delegations from individual unions, came last night after thousands of Romans had gone back to work under the protection of club-swinging police.

Other Disorders Reported

The police—67,000 strong, the largest such force assembled in Rome in recent times—used their clubs on jeering throngs to enforce Interior Minister Mario Scelba's declaration that the government would "protect those who want to work." There were no fatalities and few persons were injured gravely.

Disorders also were reported from several other parts of Italy yesterday.

In Caltanissetta, Sicily, unemployed demonstrated and nine persons were hurt, one seriously. In Varese in the extreme northwest, 400 workers whose pay was late occupied a factory and sympathetic trainmen halted traffic for four hours on the Saronno-Varese line.

In Bologna in North Central Italy, more than 700 storekeepers kept their places shut for the second straight day to protest newly-imposed provincial taxes, and police were kept busy breaking up crowds of workers that tried to force the stores to reopen.

In Rome, government-organized, privately-operated half-ton trucks, each protected by two carbine-armed police, carried those who wanted to go to their jobs yesterday, and Romans crowded them to the running boards.

Business Places Reopen

By nightfall, a survey of some of the principal streets in downtown Rome showed one out of three business places again were open, and in some streets half the establishments were open to customers after a virtual commercial paralysis Thursday.

Then last night a Chamber of Labor communique announced the strike was over. A spokesman said the vote was unanimous. The communique said appropriations by the municipality of Rome and province, added to what the government had offered for a winter relief public works program, satisfied the demands of the strikers.

Observers believed, however, that the Rome citizen's growing resentment influenced the decision.

Earlier Salvatore Rebecchini, recently-elected Mayor, was reported ready to put up 2,000,000,000 lire ($3,517,000) of city funds to add to the 11,000,000,000 which the government had offered.

Jewish Forces Go On Warpath Against Arabs

Palestine Death Toll Nearing 200

JERUSALEM, Dec. 12 (AP) — Veteran Jewish underground fighters went on the warpath from Haifa to Hebron in a series of bloody clashes with Arabs and tonight the death toll from 13 days of bitter communal fighting in Palestine neared 200.

Jewish forces struck at seven places — Haifa, Yazur, Gaza, Shafat, Tireh, Rahle and in Jerusalem itself—on this Moslem sabbath.

Claiming responsibility for five of these operations, the underground Irgun Zvai Leumi also threatened new attacks on the British army "if the British continue to interfere and permit Arabs to import arms from abroad."

A British soldier was killed and another was wounded when Arabs fired on a British convoy entering Jaffa tonight.

Middle East Toll Is 314

The day's disorders throughout Palestine brought death to 25 persons, 20 of them Arabs. An Associated Press tabulation showed 198 had been killed in the Holy Land since the United Nations General Assembly voted for partition. The toll for the entire Middle East stood at 314.

The bloodiest fighting of the day occurred at Tireh, a village near Haifa. Twelve Arabs were killed there and six others wounded when Jewish commandos attacked with grenades and automatic weapons. A house was demolished and a dozen others were damaged and set afire in the battle which lasted for an hour.

Haifa itself was relatively quiet. Arabs leaving mosques found the street lined with British armored cars and bren gun carriers. One Jew and an Arab were killed by gunfire, and a British officer and three enlisted men were wounded by bullets directed at a jeep.

Arabs staged a prison break at Athlit nine miles south of Hailfa. One Arab was killed, five were wounded and five others were known to have escaped.

Two Killed In Gaza

Two Arabs were killed and a police railway guard was wounded in Gaza. In Ramle, an Arab watchman was killed and a second wounded by Jewish bombs which wrecked a bus company and an adjoining garage.

Scattered firing continued all day from the besieged Jewish section of Jerusalem's old city. British soldiers and police patroled the narrow streets where Arabs and Jews clashed Thursday.

Jewish workers living in the ancient section were convoyed from their jobs to their homes tonight. Units of the Scottish Highland Light Infantry moved into the area at dusk after police blocked Jaffa gate. Thousands of Arabs gathered at mosques in the district during the day.

Anticipating an upsurge of Arab fury, police armed with automatic weapons were ordered on a 100 per cent standby basis. Police reports said several temporary Arab policemen on duty at iolated posts had "absconded" with arms and ammunition.

Climaxes Row Over Provision Of Labor Law

Kennedy Is Elected O'Leary's Successor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—John L. Lewis marched his 600,000 United Mine Workers out of the AFL for the second time today, in a bitter row stemming from his refusal to sign a non-Communist affidavit.

Lewis notified AFL President William Green of the new split with this roughly scrawled note:

"Green, AFL—We disaffiliate. 12-47."

He had assailed AFL leaders as "Intellectually fat and stately asses," because they decided to comply with the Taft-Hartley Act requiring union officials to swear they are not Communists.

They did this so their unions could have access to the National Labor Relations Board, with its facilities for selecting collective bargaining agents, etc. Lewis, though he is no Communist, would have nothing to do with the act.

So that Lewis' defiance would not deprive AFL unions of access to the NLRB, the federation changed its constitution in such a way that the 15-man executive council, of which Lewis was a member, was removed from the roster of federation "officers." Lewis then withdrew from the council.

Kennedy Succeeds O'Leary

This week the 67-year-old UMW president called his 30-man executive council into a session which culminated in tonight's announcement.

K.. C. Adams, editor of the UMW Journal, told reporters of the decision. Lewis himself remained in the council room.

Adams also announced election of Thomas Kennedy as UMW vice president succeeding the late John O'Leary, Pittsburgh, and of John Owens, Ohio District president, as the new secretary treasurer.

Kennedy, 60, Hazelton, Pa., has been secretary-treasurer since 1924. He followed William Green in that post when the present AFL head was chosen to succeed Samuel Gompers as president of the federation.

Adams assured reporters the miners had made "no deal" for political collaboration with any other labor group.

The UMW, which had been in the AFL since its founding in 1890, first withdrew in the great split of labor led by Lewis in 1936. Lewis helped form the CIO to organize industrial unions over the hot objection of the old line craft unionists of the AFL.

The UMW boss fell out with the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt prior to the 1940 elections and stepped down from the CIO presidency because Roosevelt won reelection to the White House. Within two years he was out of the CIO altogether and until January, 1946 he played a lone hand.

Rift Gradually Narrowed

However, the wide rift created between himself and the AFL leaders in 1936 gradually narrowed and he and Green healed their old wounds. William L. "Big Bill" Hutcheson, carpenter's boss with whom Lewis swapped punches at the 1933 AFL convention paved the way for return of the miners to the federation in 1946.

Their withdrawal today cuts the AFL's claimed membership to around 7,000,000 and makes the AFL and CIO closer to the same size.

The AFL has been using a figure

Republicans Debate How To Present Bill

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 —(AP)—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach today outlined to Congress specific proposals for price ceilings and rollbacks as Republicans debated whether or not to place their own anti-inflation bill before the House Monday on a "take it or leave it" basis.

Schwellenbach sent the proposed price control legislation to the House Banking Committee with a note saying he will submit a wage control bill shortly.

But Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich) told reporters definitely there will be no action at the special session on the Schwellenbach bill, or the one drafted by Secretary of Commerce Harriman asking priority and allocation authority.

Would Limit Price Controls

Schwellenbach said price controls would be limited to those commodities that: Basically affect the cost of living or agricultural and industrial production, and those "essential to effectuation of the foreign policy of the United States."

The Labor Secretary declared a maximum price ceiling should be applied only if the commodity is found to be in short supply, or its price has risen unreasonably beyond that prevailing in June, 1947. Under his proposals price ceilings could not be lower than the highest price prevailing between June 11 and June 18, 1947, except in cases where there have been decreased costs or market declines.

Republicans apparently got their signals crossed on how their bill will be presented to the House Monday. Rep. Allen (R-Ill), chairman of the Rules Committee, told reporters it would be offered on a "take it or leave it" basis that would bar any attempt to amend it to include the administration proposals.

Requires Two-Thirds Vote

Adoption of the "no amendments" procedure requires a two-thirds vote to suspend the House rules.

CUMBERLAND WOMAN DRAWS THREE-YEAR TERM IN LETTER CASE

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 12 —(AP)—Grace Fern Smith, Cumberland, Md., was given a three-year sentence at the Federal Reformatory for Women at Alderson, W. Va., by Federal Judge W. E. Baker today for sending a threatening letter through the mails.

The young woman was indicted for sending a letter to M. E. Ketchum, then warden at the West Virginia Penitentiary at Moundsville, demanding that he release Mark McCauley, Davis strip miner convicted slayer of a West Virginia state police sergeant.

McCauley was to be hanged last Wednesday, but was given a reprieve until January 30 by Gov. Meadows on the basis of psychiatrists' reports that he was insane.

House Republican Tax Group Near Accord On Slash

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — House Republican tax managers were reported near agreement tonight on a $5,250,000,000 personal income tax-slashing measure to be introduced probably next week for congressional action in January.

GOP members of the tax-framing House Ways and Means Committee met behind closed doors to go over the bill. Committee Chairman Knutson (R-Minn) said the gathering was informal and no decision was reached on the final draft of the bill.

However, it was understood they discussed a new bill embodying for the first time specific stipulations for percentage as well as other type tax cuts. The tentative draft was reported to provide:

1. An increase in personal tax exemptions from the present $500, to $600, thus removing some 6,000,000 low income persons from the tax rolls and giving some reductions to others of the 48,500,000 taxpayers. This would reduce revenues by about $1,900,000,000.

2. General application of the community property principle, whereby husbands and wives may split the family income equally for tax reporting purposes, putting the income in lower rate brackets and saving taxes. This would cost the Treasury about $800,000,000.

3. Certain revisions of gift and estate taxes, at a cost of $150,000,000.

4. In addition, percentage cuts—30 per cent for persons with net incomes of not more than $1,000; 20 per cent for persons with taxable

U. S. Considers Increase In Greece's Aid Fund

TACOMA, Wash, Dec. 12 (AP) — The State Department is givin "serious consideration" to increasing the amount of the $300,000,000 aid program for Greece, a top official said tonight.

George C. McGhee, co-ordinator of American aid to Greece and Turkey, made the disclosure in an address before the Tacoma World Affairs Council meeting at the College of Puget Sound.

Hike For Rayon Workers

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—The American Enka Corporation granted a pay raise of 14 cents an hour today to the more than 3,500 employes of its huge rayon yarn plant near here. The increase is retroactive to December 5.

Gift From Nimitz

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, retiring chief of naval operations, today presented to the Naval Academy Museum the khaki uniform he wore when he signed the Japanese surrender documents aboard the Missouri in Tokyo Bay September 2, 1945.

Expulsion Of 19 Russians Legal, France Declares

Premier Is Upheld By Assembly Vote

PARIS, Dec. 12—(AP)—The French government, just given a new parliamentary vote of approval over Communist opposition, told Russia tonight its recent expulsion of 19 Soviet citizens was legal.

In a reply to a Russian protest handed to the Soviet Embassy, the foreign Office said the expulsion was carried out according to international law and usage and without mistreatment of any of those involved.

Marquie Debates Closed

Shortly before the note was made public, the National Assembly sided with Premier Robert Schuman in voting to close a hot debate on criticism of the government voiced by Lt. Col. Raymond Marquie, chief of the French reparation mission expelled from Russia this week. The government got 411 votes on its move to end the debate against 183 cast in opposition by Communist deputies.

The 19 Russians were banished from France last month, in the midst of a strike wave, on the ground of "interference" in French affairs. Their expulsion followed a French raid on Camp Beauregard, Soviet reparation center near Paris.

Subsequently, the Russians sent a note of protest to the French government and the French, declaring the terms unacceptable, handed the note back.

Trade Relations Broken Off

Last Tuesday, the two governments ordered the expulsion of each other's reparations missions—maintained in Paris and Moscow for an exchange of their respective nationals—and trade relations were broken off.

Wednesday night, Col. Marquie told a Moscow news conference the French government was to blame for all the "events of the last few days" and the Soviet government was to blame for none of them. He said French charges against the Soviet citizens were false.

House Committee Seeks To Prosecute Petrillo

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The House Labor Committee today asked the Justice Department to determine whether James C. Petrillo and his American Federation of Musicians (AFL) are subject to prosecution under the anti-trust laws for "monopolistic practices."

Petrillo has ordered members of the union to cease making recordings after December 31. He also has a standing ban against performances by AFM members on television shows.

In a bristling report, the House Committee also demanded the prosecution of any offenses under the Lea Act, passed last year to restrict the musician union's activities, "or any other law."

Car Ruined, Driver Unhurt

Lewis' Decision Taken In Stride By Coal Diggers

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12 (AP)—Pittsburgh district miners took John L. Lewis' decision to break with the AFL in stride today—and tonight there was plenty of conversation about their leaders' action in mining towns throughout Western Pennsylvania.

The big majority of miners interviewed shortly after the bushy-browed Lewis informed the AFL he was "taking a walk" had no hesitancy in expressing their views.

"John took us out (of the AFL) before," said William Donohue, a wiry little Irishman, at nearby Coverdale. "We stuck with him then and he proved he was right. We'll stick with him now. You can bet your last buck on that."

Pauley Admits He "Did Rather Well' In Speculations

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — Edwin W. Pauley, defending his grain market speculation as "the good old American way," testified today that he "did rather well" in trading this year—but not through information gained as a government official.

Summoned to Capitol Hill on the heels of charges that administration "insiders" have profiteered in foodstuffs speculation, Pauley asserted he has rid himself of nine-tenths of his holdings in commodities since September 3 when he became special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall.

Asked how much money he had put up to acquire the holdings, he said "something less than a million dollars."

Transactions "Ethical"

His liquidation operations were carried out in accordance with an agreement with Royall, he told the Senate Appropriations Committee. As a result, he said, he is "currently more than $100,000 worse off than if I had retained the grain." His transactions have been "perfectly proper and ethical," he declared.

On the Senate floor, Sen. Williams (R-Del) assailed the admin-

17 Burned To Death In French Rail Wreck

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France, Saturday, Dec. 13 (AP) — Seventeen persons were burned to death and more than 20 injured last night in a collision on a rail line between Clermont-Ferrand and Montlucon, about 200 miles south of Paris.

The dead and injured were passengers on an autorail car (gasoline propelled) which was running on the same track as the regular passenger-and-freight train into which it crashed. The autorail caught fire instantly.

Marshall And Bevin Join In Praising Growth Of U. S.-British Friendship

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin joined tonight in praising the growth of British-American friendship and understanding as a pattern for peace in a turbulent world.

Going from a stormy session of the Big Four Foreign Ministers to a dinner of the Pilgrims Society, the United States and British Cabinet members stressed the desire for peace in the world and acclaimed the bonds between their two countries. The society's aim is to promote United States-British friendship.

Marshall recalled the settlement of the past British-American disputes and declared, "I know of no better example in history of what can be accomplished by nations who are willing to negotiate in the spirit of frankness and with a genuine desire to resolve their difficulties."

"Our friendship is not exclusive," Bevin declared. "We extend it in the same way to our fellow human beings the world over. Just as we, the British and Americans, understand one another, so we wish to make this understanding world-wide."

The two diplomatic chiefs avoided mention of deadlocks and recriminations in the Big Four negotiations over Germany's future. French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was present. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was not.

Marshal said the world is "sick unto death of war" and called for an end to propaganda about a new war.

Bevin praised Marshall's efforts to revive Europe and declared that the Marshall plan expressed the "true, generous heart of the American people."

Landon Says:

Truman Wants Congress To Underwrite Europe Aid Program For Four Years

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 —(AP)—President Truman wants Congress to underwrite Western Europe's recovery program for at least four years, Alf M. Landon said today after talking with Mr. Truman at the White House.

This view is in direct conflict with the stand taken by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) and several other Republican leaders who want any long-term help by the United States to be granted on a year-to-year basis.

Landon, former Governor of Kansas and Republican presidential nominee in 1936, told reporters Mr. Truman had authorized him to relay the presidential wish for a four-year guarantee of aid to Europe.

Expressing agreement with the President, Landon said: "I told him these people in Europe are sticking out their necks, that their very lives are at stake and they ought to know what they can count on."

Four years of assistance, at a total cost of $15,700,000,000 to $18,300,000,000, is contemplated in Secretary of State Marshall's program to help the 16 Western European countries which have agreed to help themselves at the same time.

President Truman's press secretary, Charles G. Ross, said today that the presidential message detailing the program will be sent to Congress "shortly" but not before Mr. Truman has conferred with congressional leaders next Monday.

Senate and House conferees, meanwhile, reached partial agreement on differences between the two houses' bills authorizing more than $500,000,000 in stopgap assistance until a long-range aid program can get started.

They deferred action, however, on the chief conflict—the fact that the Senate measure calls for $597,000,000 for France, Italy and Austria while the House version provides only $590,000,000 and cuts China in for $60,000,000 of it.

All indications were that the House Appropriations Committee, which must recommend voting of the actual funds, would leave China out of its money bill.

Unidentified Comet Emphasizes Fact Scientists Still Have Lot To Learn

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—An unidentified wanderer — a comet with a tail 75,000,000 miles long—has been observed in Australia. And scholars everywhere have shown polite interest.

Which show how much times have changed.

Until mankind learned about them, a comet was about as welcome as a tax collector with the smallpox.

For man used to study the skies for heavenly tips on his earthly affairs, as astrologers still do. And a comet, barging in unexpectedly, usually was interpreted to mean famine, war, plague and assorted disasters.

Dr. Charles Greeley Abbot, of the Smithsonian Institution, is one of world's leading authorities on the solar system. But he told a reporter today we still have a lot to learn about comets.

Partly it's because they take in so much territory. They have been known to approach as near as 90,000 miles to the sun. There are guesses they may wander almost as far as the nearest fixed star, or 25 millions of millions of miles.

This takes time, even for a comet rattling along at 383 miles a second, which is par for the comet course.

The result is that some comets may come within seeing distance only once in a million years. This is too long even for Dr. Abbot, who is 75.

Some experts think the Australian visitor may be Encke's Comet.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says old J. F. Encke, who did the research on the comet that was to bear his name, figured it needed only 3.3 years to complete the circuit. This is a record holder among comets.

ROME, Dec. 13—(AP)—Rome's 48-hour general strike—the latest battle in the left's "winter offensive" against Premier Alcide De Gasperi's Christian Democratic government—ended at midnight with both sides loudly claiming victory.

The communique said appropriations by the municipality of Rome and province, added to what the government had offered for a winter relief public works program, satisfied the demands of the strikers.

Observers believed, however, that the Rome citizen's growing resentment influenced the decision.

Earlier Salvatore Rebecchini, recently-elected Mayor, was reported ready to put up 2,000,000,000 lire ($3,517,000) of city funds to add to the 11,000,000,000 which the government had offered.

Jewish Forces Go On Warpath Against Arabs

Palestine Death Toll Nearing 200

JERUSALEM, Dec. 12 (AP) — Veteran Jewish underground fighters went on the warpath from Haifa to Hebron in a series of bloody clashes with Arabs and tonight the death toll from 13 days of bitter communal fighting in Palestine neared 200.

Jewish forces struck at seven places — Haifa, Yazur, Gaza, Shafat, Tireh, Rahle and in Jerusalem itself—on this Moslem sabbath.

Claiming responsibility for five of these operations, the underground Irgun Zvai Leumi also threatened new attacks on the British army "if the British continue to interfere and permit Arabs to import arms from abroad."

A British soldier was killed and another was wounded when Arabs fired on a British convoy entering Jaffa tonight.

Middle East Toll Is 314

The day's disorders throughout Palestine brought death to 25 persons, 20 of them Arabs. An Associated Press tabulation showed 198 had been killed in the Holy Land since the United Nations General Assembly voted for partition. The toll for the entire Middle East stood at 314.

The bloodiest fighting of the day occurred at Tireh, a village near Haifa. Twelve Arabs were killed there and six others wounded when Jewish commandos attacked with grenades and automatic weapons. A house was demolished and a dozen others were damaged and set afire in the battle which lasted for an hour.

Haifa itself was relatively quiet. Arabs leaving mosques found the street lined with British armored cars and bren gun carriers. One Jew and an Arab were killed by gunfire, and a British officer and three enlisted men were wounded by bullets directed at a jeep.

Arabs staged a prison break at Athlit nine miles south of Haifa. One Arab was killed, five were wounded and five others were known to have escaped.

Two Killed In Gaza

Two Arabs were killed and a police railway guard was wounded in Gaza. In Ramle, an Arab watchman was killed and a second wounded by Jewish bombs which wrecked a bus company and an adjoining garage.

Scattered firing continued all day from the besieged Jewish section of Jerusalem's old city. British soldiers and police patroled the narrow streets where Arabs and Jews clashed Thursday.

Jewish workers living in the ancient section were convoyed from their jobs to their homes tonight. Units of the Scottish Highland Light Infantry moved into the area at dusk after police blocked Jaffa gate. Thousands of Arabs gathered at mosques in the district during the day.

Anticipating an upsurge of Arab fury, police armed with automatic weapons were ordered on a 100 per cent standby basis. Police reports said several temporary Arab policemen on duty at iolated posts had "absconded" with arms and ammunition.

Climaxes Row Over Provision Of Labor Law

Kennedy Is Elected O'Leary's Successor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—John L. Lewis marched his 600,000 United Mine Workers out of the AFL for the second time today, in a bitter row stemming from his refusal to sign a non-Communist affidavit.

Lewis notified AFL President William Green of the new split with this roughly scrawled note:

"Green, AFL—We disaffiliate. 12-47."

He had assailed AFL leaders as "intellectually fat and stately asses," because they decided to comply with the Taft-Hartley Act requiring union officials to swear they are not Communists.

They did this so their unions could have access to the National Labor Relations Board, with its facilities for selecting collective bargaining agents, etc. Lewis, though he is no Communist, would have nothing to do with the act.

So that Lewis' defiance would not deprive AFL unions of access to the NLRB, the federation changed its constitution in such a way that the 15-man executive council, of which Lewis was a member, was removed from the roster of federation "officers." Lewis then withdrew from the council.

Kennedy Succeeds O'Leary

This week the 67-year-old UMW president called his 30-man executive council into a session which culminated in tonight's announcement.

K.. C. Adams, editor of the UMW Journal, told reporters of the decision. Lewis himself remained in the council room.

Adams also announced election of Thomas Kennedy as UMW vice president succeeding the late John O'Leary, Pittsburgh, and of John Owens, Ohio District president, as the new secretary treasurer.

Kennedy, 60, Hazelton, Pa., has been secretary-treasurer since 1924. He followed William Green in that post when the present AFL head was chosen to succeed Samuel Gompers as president of the federation.

Adams assured reporters the miners had made "no deal" for political collaboration with any other labor group.

The UMW, which had been in the AFL since its founding in 1890, first withdrew in the great split of labor led by Lewis in 1936. Lewis helped form the CIO to organize industrial unions over the hot objection of the old line craft unionists of the AFL.

The UMW boss fell out with the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt prior to the 1940 elections and stepped down from the CIO presidency because Roosevelt won re-election to the White House. Within two years he was out of the CIO altogether and until January, 1946 he played a lone hand.

Rift Gradually Narrowed

However, the wide rift created between himself and the AFL leaders in 1936 gradually narrowed and he and Green healed their old wounds. William L. "Big Bill" Hutcheson, carpenter's boss with whom Lewis swapped punches at the 1933 AFL convention paved the way for return of the miners to the federation in 1946.

Their withdrawal today cuts the AFL's claimed membership to around 7,000,000 and makes the AFL and CIO closer to the same size.

The AFL has been using a figure

Republicans Debate How To Present Bill

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 —(AP)—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach today outlined to Congress specific proposals for price ceilings and rollbacks as Republicans debated whether or not to place their own anti-inflation bill before the House Monday on a "take it or leave it" basis.

Schwellenbach sent the proposed price control legislation to the House Banking Committee with a note saying he will submit a wage control bill shortly.

But Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich) told reporters definitely there will be no action at the special session on the Schwellenbach bill, or the one drafted by Secretary of Commerce Harriman asking priority and allocation authority.

Would Limit Price Controls

Schwellenbach said price controls would be limited to those commodities that: Basically affect the cost of living or agricultural and industrial production, and those "essential to effectuation of the foreign policy of the United States."

The Labor Secretary declared a maximum price ceiling should be applied only if the commodity is found to be in short supply, or its price has risen unreasonably beyond that prevailing in June, 1947. Under his proposals price ceilings could not be lower than the highest price prevailing between June 11 and June 18, 1947, except in cases where there have been decreased costs or market declines.

Republicans apparently got their signals crossed on how their bill will be presented to the House Monday. Rep. Allen (R-Ill), chairman of the Rules Committee, told reporters it would be offered on a "take it or leave it" basis that would bar any attempt to amend it to include the administration proposals.

Requires Two-Thirds Vote

Adoption of the "no amendments" procedure requires a two-thirds vote to suspend the House rules.

CUMBERLAND WOMAN DRAWS THREE-YEAR TERM IN LETTER CASE

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 12 —(AP)—Grace Fern Smith, Cumberland, Md., was given a three-year sentence at the Federal Reformatory for Women at Alderson, W. Va., by Federal Judge W. E. Baker today for sending a threatening letter through the mails.

The young woman was indicted for sending a letter to M. E. Ketchum, then warden at the West Virginia Penitentiary at Moundsville, demanding that he release Mark McCauley, Davis strip miner convicted slayer of a West Virginia state police sergeant.

McCauley was to be hanged last Wednesday, but was given a reprieve until January 30 by Gov. Meadows on the basis of psychiatrists' reports that he was insane.

House Republican Tax Group Near Accord On Slash

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — House Republican tax managers were reported near agreement tonight on a $5,250,000,000 personal income tax-slashing measure to be introduced probably next week for congressional action in January.

GOP members of the tax-framing House Ways and Means Committee met behind closed doors to go over the bill. Committee Chairman Knutson (R-Minn) said the gathering was informal and no decision was reached on the final draft of the bill.

However, it was understood they discussed a new bill embodying for the first time specific stipulations for percentage as well as other type tax cuts. The tentative draft was reported to provide:

1. An increase in personal tax exemptions from the present $500, to $600, thus removing some 6,000,000 low income persons from the tax rolls and giving some reductions to others of the 48,500,000 taxpayers. This would reduce revenues by about $1,900,000,000.

2. General application of the community property principle, whereby husbands and wives may split the family income equally for tax reporting purposes, putting the income in lower rate brackets and saving taxes. This would cost the Treasury about $600,000,000.

3. Certain revisions of gift and estate taxes, at a cost of $150,000,000.

4. In addition, percentage cuts—30 per cent for persons with net incomes of not more than $1,000; 20 per cent for persons with taxable

U. S. Considers Increase In Greece's Aid Fund

TACOMA, Wash, Dec. 12 (AP) — The State Department is givin "serious consideration" to increasing the amount of the $300,000,000 aid program for Greece, a top official said tonight.

George C. McGhee, co-ordinator of American aid to Greece and Turkey, made the disclosure in an address before the Tacoma World Affairs Council meeting at the College of Puget Sound.

Hike For Rayon Workers

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—The American Enka Corporation granted a pay raise of 14 cents an hour today to the more than 3,500 employes of its huge rayon yarn plant near here. The increase is retroactive to December 5.

Gift From Nimitz

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, retiring chief of naval operations, today presented to the Naval Academy Museum the khaki uniform he wore when he signed the Japanese surrender documents aboard the Missouri in Tokyo Bay September 2, 1945.

Expulsion Of 19 Russians Legal, France Declares

Premier Is Upheld By Assembly Vote

PARIS, Dec. 12—(AP)—The French government, just given a new parliamentary vote of approval over Communist opposition, told Russia tonight its recent expulsion of 19 Soviet citizens was legal.

In a reply to a Russian protest handed to the Soviet Embassy, the foreign Office said the expulsion was carried out according to international law and usage and without mistreatment of any of those involved.

Marquie Debates Closed

Shortly before the note was made public, the National Assembly sided with Premier Robert Schuman in voting to close a hot debate on criticism of the government voiced by Lt. Col. Raymond Marquie, chief of the French reparation mission expelled from Russia this week. The government got 411 votes on its move to end the debate against 183 cast in opposition by Communist deputies.

The 19 Russians were banished from France last month, in the midst of a strike wave, on the ground of "interference" in French affairs. Their expulsion followed a French raid on Camp Beauregard, Soviet reparation center near Paris.

Subsequently, the Russians sent a note of protest to the French government and the French, declaring the terms unacceptable, handed the note back.

Trade Relations Broken Off

Last Tuesday, the two governments ordered the expulsion of each other's reparations missions—maintained in Paris and Moscow for an exchange of their respective nationals—and trade relations were broken off.

Wednesday night, Col. Marquie told a Moscow news conference the French government was to blame for all the "events of the last few days" and the Soviet government was to blame for none of them. He said French charges against the Soviet citizens were false.

House Committee Seeks To Prosecute Petrillo

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The House Labor Committee today asked the Justice Department to determine whether James C. Petrillo and his American Federation of Musicians (AFL) are subject to prosecution under the anti-trust laws for "monopolistic practices."

Petrillo has ordered members of the union to cease making recordings after December 31. He also has a standing ban against performances by AFM members on television shows.

In a bristling report, the House Committee also demanded the prosecution of any offenses under the Lea Act, passed last year to restrict the musician union's activities, "or any other law."

Car Ruined, Driver Unhurt

Lewis' Decision Taken In Stride By Coal Diggers

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12 (AP)—Pittsburgh district miners took John L. Lewis' decision to break with the AFL in stride today—and tonight there was plenty of conversation about their leaders' action in mining towns throughout Western Pennsylvania.

The big majority of miners interviewed shortly after the bushy-browed Lewis informed the AFL he was "taking a walk" had no hesitancy in expressing their views.

"John took us out (of the AFL) before," said William Donohue, a wiry little Irishman, at nearby Coverdale. "We stuck with him then and he proved he was right. We'll stick with him now. You can bet your last buck on that."

Pauley Admits He "Did Rather Well" In Speculations

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — Edwin W. Pauley, defending his grain market speculation as "the good old American way," testified today that he "did rather well" in trading this year—but not through information gained as a government official.

Summoned to Capitol Hill on the heels of charges that administration "insiders" have profiteered in foodstuffs speculation, Pauley asserted he has rid himself of nine-tenths of his holdings in commodities since September 3 when he became special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall.

Asked how much money he had put up to acquire the holdings, he said "something less than a million dollars."

Transactions "Ethical"

His liquidation operations were carried out in accordance with an agreement with Royall, he told the Senate Appropriations Committee. As a result, he said, he is "currently more than $100,000 worse off than if I had retained the grain." His transactions have been "perfectly proper and ethical," he declared.

On the Senate floor, Sen. Williams (R-Del) assailed the admin-

17 Burned To Death In French Rail Wreck

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France, Saturday, Dec. 13 (AP) — Seventeen persons were burned to death and more than 20 injured last night in a collision on a rail line between Clermont-Ferrand and Montlucon, about 200 miles south of Paris.

The dead and injured were passengers on an autorail car (gasoline propelled) which was running on the same track as the regular passenger-and-freight train into which it crashed. The autorail caught fire instantly.

Landon Says:

Truman Wants Congress To Underwrite Europe Aid Program For Four Years

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 —(AP)—President Truman wants Congress to underwrite Western Europe's recovery program for at least four years, Alf M. Landon said today after talking with Mr. Truman at the White House.

This view is in direct conflict with the stand taken by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) and several other Republican leaders who want any long-term help by the United States to be granted on a year-to-year basis.

Landon, former Governor of Kansas and Republican presidential nominee in 1936, told reporters Mr. Truman had authorized him to relay the presidential wish for a four-year guarantee of aid to Europe.

Expressing agreement with the President, Landon said: "I told him these people in Europe are sticking out their necks, that their very lives are at stake and they ought to know what they can count on."

Four years of assistance, at a total cost of $15,700,000,000 to $18,300,000,000, is contemplated in Secretary of State Marshall's program to help the 16 Western European countries which have agreed to help themselves at the same time.

President Truman's press secretary, Charles G. Ross, said today that the presidential message detailing the program will be sent to Congress "shortly" but not before Mr. Truman has conferred with congressional leaders next Monday.

Senate and House conferees, meanwhile, reached partial agreement on differences between the two houses' bills authorizing more than $500,000,000 in stopgap assistance until a long-range aid program can get started.

They deferred action, however, on the chief conflict—the fact that the Senate measure calls for $597,000,000 for France, Italy and Austria while the House version provides only $590,000,000 and cuts China in for $60,000,000 of it.

All indications were that the House Appropriations Committee, which must recommend voting of the actual funds, would leave China out of its money bill.

Marshall And Bevin Join In Praising Growth Of U. S.-British Friendship

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin joined tonight in praising the growth of British-American friendship and understanding as a pattern for peace in a turbulent world.

Going from a stormy session of the Big Four Foreign Ministers to a dinner of the Pilgrims Society, the United States and British Cabinet members stressed the desire for peace in the world and acclaimed the bonds between their two countries. The society's aim is to promote United States-British friendship.

Marshall recalled the settlement of the past British-American disputes and declared, "I know of no better example in history of what can be accomplished by nations who are willing to negotiate in the spirit of frankness and with a genuine desire to resolve their difficulties."

"Our friendship is not exclusive," Bevin declared. "We extend it in the same way to our fellow human beings the world over. Just as we, the British and Americans, understand one another, so we wish to make this understanding world-wide."

The two diplomatic chiefs avoided mention of deadlocks and recriminations in the Big Four negotiations over Germany's future. French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was present. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was not.

Marshal said the world is "sick unto death of war" and called for an end to propaganda about a new war.

Bevin praised Marshall's efforts to revive Europe and declared that the Marshall plan expressed the "true, generous heart of the American people."

Unidentified Comet Emphasizes Fact Scientists Still Have Lot To Learn

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—An unidentified wanderer — a comet with a tail 75,000,000 miles long—has been observed in Australia. And scholars everywhere have shown polite interest.

Which show how much times have changed.

Until mankind learned about them, a comet was about as welcome as a tax collector with the smallpox.

For man used to study the skies for heavenly tips on his earthly affairs, as astrologers still do. And a comet, barging in unexpectedly, usually was interpreted to mean famine, war, plague and assorted disasters.

Dr. Charles Greeley Abbot, of the Smithsonian Institution, is one of world's leading authorities on the solar system. But he told a reporter today we still have a lot to learn about comets.

Partly it's because they take in so much territory. They have been known to approach as near as 20,000 miles to the sun. There are guesses they may wander almost as far as the nearest fixed star, or 25 millions of millions of miles.

This takes time, even for a comet rattling along at 383 miles a second, which is par for the comet course.

The result is that some comets may come within seeing distance only once in a million years. This is too long even for Dr. Abbot, who is 75.

Some experts think the Australian visitor may be Encke's Comet.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says old J. F. Encke, who did the research on the comet that was to bear his name, figured it needed only 3.3 years to complete the circuit. This is a record holder among comets.

Tankers Will Be Sold To Help Oil Situation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — With the fuel oil situation labelled "critical," because of transportation "bottlenecks" and other factors, the Maritime Commission announced tonight it has authorized the sale of every available T-2 and Liberty type tanker remaining in its jurisdiction.

The commission did not state the exact number of ships involved, or whether the sales were authorized to domestic or foreign purchasers.

It is known, however, that the commission has 51 Liberty type tankers, either in operation or lay-up, and on October 3 had 209 of the T-2 type.

of about 7,600,000 and the Cio "more than 6,000,000."

With "Big John" again walking alone, organized labor is more disunited than ever—at a time when many labor leaders have been calling for more unity.

Now there are AFL, the CIO, the independent brotherhoods, the machinists claiming more than 600,000 members, the mine workers, the Communications Workers of America in the telephone industry, and many smaller independent groups.

Chairman Hartley (R-NJ), of the House Labor Committee, who helped draft the much-disputed Taft-Hartley Act, commented on Lewis' action:

"I think this is just another example of a man who, if he cannot dominate everything he is associated with, won't play ball. This is a demonstration of the man's complete arrogance."

Labor Secretary

Allen claimed the Republicans had the necessary two-thirds, saying: "a lot of southern Democrats will vote with us. They don't like controls and ration stamps."

House Democratic Leader Rayburn, of Texas, replied that it was an "inexcusable strong arm method to deny the membership of the House the right to present amendments on a bill of this importance."

Speaker Martin (R-Mass) said "nothing has been decided" about the GOP strategy and Wolcott told newsmen it probably won't be decided "until we look the situation over during the weekend."

At a press conference late today, Schwellenbach said the price control outline submitted to the House Banking Committee was "my own idea" and cannot be classed as an administration plan.

Eviction Orders Will Be Held Up By Magistrates

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 12 (AP)—J. Glennon McKenna, speaking for himself and eight fellow magistrates, announced today they have agreed not to sign any eviction orders until after the Christmas holidays "by authority of Dickens's 'A Christmas Carol.'"

"Nobody wants to be a Scrooge, least of all a magistrate," McKenna said, so any eviction suit judgments will have to wait until January 5 for an execution order.

Savage Attack

and Briton also have insisted that unless a reparations settlement is agreed upon there is little use in going on with other subjects.

Vladimir Pavlov, Soviet briefing officer and former personal interpreter for Stalin, described Marshall's reply as "a personal attack on the Soviet government to which Mr. Molotov did not reply."

Asked if he thought Molotov's attack would mean an end of the conference, Pavlov declared this was a "matter for Mr. Marshall to decide."

A large section of the American delegation was said to be urging Marshall tonight to break off the conference on the grounds that it was only a sounding board for Soviet propaganda and for attacks against the United States.

The Treasury probably would lose about $2,400,000,000 in revenue.

istration as "trying to manipulate the market." He said purchases by government officials should be scrutinized to learn "whether they coincided or came a few days before (crop) reports of the Agriculture Department."

His advice to investigators came as House leaders, too, prepared to follow up charges made by Harold E. Stassen, candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, that "insiders" in the government have speculated in food markets and caused prices to rise.

The fast-moving Pauley investigation, plowing through a full morning session of questions, also developed:

1. An assertion by Pauley that President Truman could not have known—and neither could Secretary of Agriculture Anderson — that Pauley was operating in commodity markets when they blasted at speculators as raising the cost of living. On October 5, Mr. Truman assailed the "greed of speculators who gamble on what may lie ahead in our commodity markets."

2. A promise by Pauley to lay before the committee the record of his market dealings, including complete accounts of his tradings in grains and other foods during the time he was a special ambassador for President Truman in a reparations study abroad.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — With the fuel oil situation labelled "critical," because of transportation "bottlenecks" and other factors, the Maritime Commission announced tonight it has authorized the sale of every available T-2 and Liberty type tanker remaining in its jurisdiction.

The commission did not state the exact number of ships involved, or whether the sales were authorized to domestic or foreign purchasers.

It is known, however, that the commission has 51 Liberty type tankers, either in operation or layup, and on October 3 had 209 of the T-2 type.

of about 7,600,000 and the Cio "more than 6,000,000."

With "Big John" again walking alone, organized labor is more disunited than ever—at a time when many labor leaders have been calling for more unity.

Now there are AFL, the CIO, the independent brotherhoods, the machinists claiming more than 600,000 members, the mine workers, the Communications Workers of America in the telephone industry, and many smaller independent groups.

Chairman Hartley (R-NJ), of the House Labor Committee, who helped draft the much-disputed Taft-Hartley Act, commented on Lewis' action:

"I think this is just another example of a man who, if he cannot dominate everything he is associated with, won't play ball. This is a demonstration of the man's complete arrogance."

Labor Secretary

Allen claimed the Republicans had the necessary two-thirds, saying: "a lot of southern Democrats will vote with us. They don't like controls and ration stamps."

House Democratic Leader Rayburn, of Texas, replied that it was an "inexcusable strong arm method to deny the membership of the House the right to present amendments on a bill of this importance."

Speaker Martin (R-Mass) said "nothing has been decided" about the GOP strategy and Wolcott told newsmen it probably won't be decided "until we look the situation over during the weekend."

At a press conference late today, Schwellenbach said the price control outline submitted to the House Banking Committee was "my own idea" and cannot be classed as an administration plan.

Eviction Orders Will Be Held Up By Magistrates

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 12 (AP)—J. Glennon McKenna, speaking for himself and eight fellow magistrates, announced today they have agreed not to sign any eviction orders until after the Christmas holidays "by authority of Dickens's 'A Christmas Carol.'"

"Nobody wants to be a Scrooge, least of all a magistrate," McKenna said, so any eviction suit judgments will have to wait until January 5 for an execution order.

and Briton also have insisted that unless a reparations settlement is agreed upon there is little use in going on with other subjects.

Vladimir Pavlov, Soviet briefing officer and former personal interpreter for Stalin, described Marshall's reply as "a personal attack on the Soviet government to which Mr. Molotov did not reply."

Asked if he thought Molotov's attack would mean an end of the conference, Pavlov declared this was a "matter for Mr. Marshall to decide."

A large section of the American delegation was said to be urging Marshall tonight to break off the conference on the grounds that it was only a sounding board for Soviet propaganda and for attacks against the United States.

incomes above $1,000 but not more than $4,000 (the 20 per cent would apply to all of such persons' income, the 30 per cent not carrying through to the first $1,000 of persons with larger income); 10 per cent cut on that part of any taxable income over $4,000. The Treasury probably would lose about $2,400,000,000 in revenue.

istration as "trying to manipulate the market." He said purchases by government officials should be scrutinized to learn "whether they coincided or came a few days before (crop) reports of the Agriculture Department."

His advice to investigators came as House leaders, too, prepared to follow up charges made by Harold E. Stassen, candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, that "insiders" in the government have speculated in food markets and caused prices to rise.

The fast-moving Pauley investigation, plowing through a full morning session of questions, also developed:

1. An assertion by Pauley that President Truman could not have known—and neither could Secretary of Agriculture Anderson — that Pauley was operating in commodity markets when they blasted at speculators as raising the cost of living. On October 5, Mr. Truman assailed the "greed of speculators who gamble on what may lie ahead in our commodity markets."

2. A promise by Pauley to lay before the committee the record of his market dealings, including complete accounts of his tradings in grains and other foods during the time he was a special ambassador for President Truman in a reparations study abroad.

Father Dies

Chester Marshall, Sr., a former resident of Thomas, died yesterday in Buckhannon, according to word received by his son, Chester Marshall, Jr., freshman English teacher at Parsons High School.

The latter who has been serving as substitute basketball coach during the illness of Coach Homer Brooks, a pneumonia patient in Tucker County Hospital, left for Buckhannon last night.

Richard Agee Dies

Richard Lynn Agee, 18, Parsons, died Wednesday night in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, where he had been a patient for two days.

He was born in Parsons, a son of Asa and Erma Stump Agee, Parsons, and graduated from Parsons High School in 1947. He was a member of the Boys Club, the 4-H Club, the Junior Hi-Y and the Hi-Y and had been staff photographer for the school paper and yearbook.

He was also a member of the Junior Volunteer Fire Company and of the Senior department.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Maurice Agee, Washington, D. C., and Harold, a student at West Virginia Institute of Technology, and his grandmother, Mrs. David Stump, Parsons.

Inquest Planned In Girl's Death

BEDFORD, Pa.—A coroner's jury will be asked to fix responsibility for the death of Ruth Virginia Pittman, 18, Clearville R.F.D. 2. The inquest will be held at 7 p. m. Monday here. Coroner Vernon Geisel will be in charge.

Miss Pittman met instant death in an automobile accident on Route 220, seven miles north of Bedford, on September 28. She was one of seven passengers in an automobile driven by Donald Lindberg Robinette, 20, Cumberland. Robinette was arrested by state police for a traffic violation. Later he was charged with manslaughter and released on bail pending a court hearing.

His case was continued from the December term of court on motion of District Attorney Paul A. Koontz. He said the outcome of injuries to another passenger in the Robinette car was being awaited.

The fatal accident occurred when Robinette attempted to pass a car in front of him and collided with a light truck going in the opposite direction. Fourteen persons were involved in the mishap—eight in the Robinette car and six in the truck, which was operated by George Jonosky of Dunlo.

Frances Regina Pittman, 16, is the other passenger from the Robinette car seriously hurt. She is still confined to her home.

Hasty Action On Rent Control Group Not Necessary

A proposal for a rent control ordinance for Cumberland, which was submitted to the Mayor and City County a few days ago by Mr. Earl Snyder, vice president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, acting on behalf of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference, will, undoubtedly, receive the careful consideration it deserves, but hasty action on the part of the City Council is hardly necessary.

The proposed ordinance provides for the setting up of a three-man Emergency Rent Control Commission, with business, labor and the public represented. The public member, under the terms of the ordinance, would become chairman at $4,000 annually, while $3,000 would be paid each of the other members of the board. In addition to the stated salaries, there would be other expenses incurred for salaries of any employe or employes the commission deemed necessary, and office costs.

Except for the payment of the $10,000 in salaries to the commissioners, no estimate of the over-all cost is set forth, but it would, undoubtedly, be boosted by several thousands of dollars. In the absence of any fees being provided for in the ordinane to help defray the expense, the city would be expected to meet the cost of the operation at the expense of the taxpayers. It is questionable whether property-owners, who carry the bulk of the cost of city government, would approve.

Up to now, there have been no outstanding hardship cases of excessive rent increases brought to public attention. There have been increases of as much as 15 per cent by mutual consent of the landlord and the tenant, the latter agreeing to an increase in return for a lease on the property until the end of 1948. And there are instances where dwellings have been remodeled into apartments, or transformed into duplex houses. In all such cases those structures which were previously under rent control regulations are automatically decontrolled, and rents have been increased, and in some cases, too much. But such instances are few and cannot be considered in the overall picture.

Landlords, as a rule, have been hesitant to take advantage of this provision in the federal rent control law, and few have pressed tenants for an increase in return for a lease. Landlords of single-family houses in many cases appear reluctant to tie up their properties for as long as eighteen months, with the potential possibilities of favorable sales offers.

Rent increases, on the average, have not been for more than 5 per cent during the time since the new federal law became effective last June 30. Less than 10 per cent of the occupants of the 15,700,000 family dwellings in the nation has agreed to a 15 per cent increase, in return for up to 18-month leases. On the other hand, a spot check by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in twenty-nine cities shows that rents for the nation as a whole went up only 5.2 per cent, the increases ranging from $4 to $8 a month. That, certainly, is not a picture which should prove alarming.

It is proposed that the Cumberland ordinance become effective with the expiration of federal regulations, February 29. But in the face of indications that Congress will extend rent controls, in some form, beyond that date when it meets in regular session in January, if not during the current special session, the Mayor and City Commissioners can afford to mark time.

But if it should be found necessary to enact local rent control legislation, in the event rents be exhorbitantly increased, it must be on a more conservative cost basis than that suggested in the proposed ordinance now before the city governing body.

It will cost $40,000,000,000 to run the federal government next year. The oldfashioned watchdog of the Treasury must be on relief.

That "Revolt" Within The Republican Party

There has been some editorial comment lately —and not all of it in Democratic papers—about the "revolt" of G. O. P. Senators against the Republican leadership in Congress. This talk has been encouraged by the demands of Senator Aiken of Vermont for the resignation of Carroll B. Reece as chairman of the Republican National Committee. In some quarters the "revolt" rumors have been inflated in a fashion to surprise and delight the handful of revolters.

In plain fact, there is no split in Republican ranks today at all comparable to the "insurgent" and "progressive" movements that disrupted the Taft, Coolidge and Hoover administrations in the past. While half a dozen regular Republican Senators are more sympathetic to price controls than the majority leaders, only four Senators are in general revolt against the G. O. P. "platform" adopted in December, 1945. They are Aiken of Vermont, Langer of North Dakota, Morse of Oregon and Malone of Nevada.

Just three Republican Senators voted against the Taft-Hartley Act—Langer, Malone and Morse. Only three voted to sustain the President's veto of the tax reduction bill—Aiken, Langer and Morse. As a Washington orrespondent pointed out recently, this trio voted with their party only one-third of the time on the 89 "partisan votes" during the last session of Congress.

To speak of current attacks by Aiken, Langer and Morse as a "party revolt" is to exaggerate the importance of a political habit.

It is estimated that more than 300,000 cigarettes are lighted every minute, but it is not revealed how many of them burn table tops.

Farm Labor Survey

American farmers are expected to produce as much food as possible in 1948. The need will be as great, perhaps, as at any time during the war. To meet that goal, they will need sufficient manpower to cultivate their land and gather in the crops.

It is almost always easier to solve a problem if it is revealed in advance how big it will be. Employment services in many states are now tackling this job. Questionnaires are being sent to farmers. If the blanks are filled out and returned promptly, it will be easier to provide individual employers with help when they need it.

Inflation seems to have hit everywhere. The former dime chain letter has gone up to two dollars.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

SURGERY IN APPENDICITIS

APPENDICITIS is probably as old as man himself. A long time ago Fernel and Heister came close to the truth about the disease, but it was never recognized until 61 years ago when Reginald Fitz first described it. A year later, the first appendectomy was performed.

It did not take long for the profession to realize the value of this operation in saving the lives of patients in whom complications existed or were inevitable. A longer period was required to convince them of the benefit of early surgery. Heated debates were still going on in 1920 but ultimately statistics showed that without question more individuals survived if the appendix was removed as soon as possible after inflammation set in than if the medico waited until rupture or peritonitis occurred. Some members of the laity are still skeptical but in spite of occasional mistakes in diagnosis more persons are alive today because they accepted the advice of the physician and were operated upon.

According to the Metropolitan Life Insurance company there has been among their policyholders a decline of more than 70 per cent in deaths from acute appendicits. Improvements in surgical technic have also helped. Fifteen years ago 18,000 individuals died of appendicitis; in 1943 there were only 8,100 in spite of an increase in population. Furthermore, with the added impetus of the wonder drugs, a much lower mortality rate can be expected. In good institutions, less than one-half of one per cent of operated patients succumb which is a far cry from the figures before surgery and even during the days when appendectomies first came into general use.

The physician does not deserve all the credit as the people themselves have learned not to disregard abdominal pain. Mother no longer gives her offspring laxatives for tummyaches. This is especially true if distress is associated with nausea and vomiting. As inflammation becomes more firmly established, aching localizes in the lower right side.

Herein lies the tricky nature of appendicitis because the amount of pain and tenderness is no index of the severity of the disease. All physicians have encountered patients in whom the outward manifestations were slight but at operation the organ was found to be ruptured or gangrenous. The opposite is true also. It is little wonder, therefore, that the experienced medical man prefers not to take a chance since, thru surgery, more lives are saved. Moreover, he is less ligely to be criticized if a questionable organ is removed now and then than to wait until the appendix perforates and peritonitis sets in.

Even though the incidence of the disease is not declining, times are changing thanks to the sulfonamides, penicillin, and streptomycin. Should complications arise, the physician has more measures than formerly to combat them. As a result, he can afford to delay until laboratory proof of the diagnosis is forthcoming.

INCLUDE THEM IN DIET

H. J. writes: Are fruit juices good for arthritis?

REPLY

Yes, as part of the diet recommended in arthritis. They supply vitamins and have a laxative effect.

AGING EYES

A. S. writes: I have much moisture in my eyes and doctors cannot give me relief. Could this be due to advanced age?

REPLY

Yes, since, with advancing years, the lids sometimes sag. Thus the mechanism of the tear glands is unable to function perfectly causing the eyes to "water" more than they should.

COLD AND RESISTANCE

R. C. writes: Does a person necessarily have to be in a rundown condition to catch cold?

REPLY

No, but it helps.

SHOULDER PAIN

J. T. writes: Is bursitis the same as neuritis? My sore shoulder has been diagnosed as both.

REPLY

No, these are two distinct conditions. The nerves and bursa are so close together in this region, however, that it is not always easy to differentiate between them.

CONSTRICTED BLOOD VESSELS

C. H. writes: Do you think cold weather affects the heart?

REPLY

Yes, when an abnormality is present. Individuals with coronary artery disturbances often complain of chest pain on a cold or windy day because the amount of blood flowing to the heart muscle is reduced.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Pretty sweet of old Hirohito to veto all thoughts of a second Pearl Harbor. We cannot afford another one. Neither can Hirohito.

The Mikado visited Hiroshima wearing the imperial derby of his illustrious ancestors. And he is almost convinced that Japan has recovered from the beating it gave us.

We didn't exactly blow up the boiler at Hiroshima. The town exploded like the paper bag it was. And can be rebuilt from card board, chewing gum and box tops.

Only one thing we can guarantee future enemies is disinterested demolition. When our house-wreckers turn on the works we even crack the door knobs.

INTERESTING OBSERVATION

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lt. Col. Laux Stymied In His Efforts To Safeguard Paratroopers; PM's Izzy Stone Does About-Face; Truman Teaches History

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—Here is more about the 800 U. S. paratroopers shot down by our own troops over Sicily and the Army's attempt not to rectify the error, but to punish officers who wanted to correct the causes of this tragedy.

One of the men who took part in this Sicilian airborne infantry operation and was lucky enough to live through it was Lt. Col. David Laux. Afterward, he directed his energies toward making sure that future Army transports carrying paratroopers were equipped with self-sealing gasoline tanks so they could not be shot down so easily by anti-aircraft fire. A transport carrying paratroopers must necessarily fly low and slow; therefore, it is an easy target from the ground, no matter who is firing. And the planes shot down over Sicily had no self-sealing tanks, armor plate or any other protection whatsoever.

However, when Laux was opposed on better protection for these planes, he finally wrote a letter direct to Secretary of War Stimson, who turned the letter over to one of the officers opposing Laux on self-sealing tanks—Gen. Barney Giles. And Giles immediately ordered Laux to Alaska.

A day or two later, after Col. Laux had arrived in Alaska, Giles followed him up with an amazing 600-word telegram, which, if Congress ever gets around to investigate, would be revealing evidence.

Gen. Giles telegraphed Gen. Dale V. Gaffney at Nome, Alaska, directing him to secure from Col. Laux all reports, papers and letters relative to self-sealing tanks and paratrooper transports. The telegram also asked that Laux authorize the Air Corps in Washington to pick up any papers in Laux' home pertaining to the protection of paratroop planes.

Too Tough For Barney

By this time Gen. Gaffney smelled a rat. And being a tough Irishman with a son who was in a troop-carrier outfit, he got on the telephone and proceeded to bawl out Gen. Giles for sending Col. Laux to Alaska.

"When I want any officers of lieutenant colonel rank up here, I'll make them myself," he said. "You don't need to concern yourself with sending them to me."

When Giles remonstrated, Gaffney shot back:

"Don't give me any of that, Barney. What's the matter? Has Laux got something on you?"

Thus, Col. Laux, the man who tried to prevent future mistakes in the Army, sat out the rest of the war in Nome, Alaska, nearest point to Siberia.

Meanwhile, the Army had searched his files, and frankly admitted they wanted to burn all his reports, letters, etc., which demanded self-sealing tanks in troop-carrying planes. Laux managed to keep one copy of his letter to Stimson, however—the letter recently published in this column.

In this letter, Col. Laux told the Secretary of War that there had been "criminal negligence" in regard to troop-carrying transports and that he, Laux, "was pepared to prove it."

However, no investigation was ever made. Meanwhile, Brig. Gen. "Mike" Dunn, who was reduced in rank when he protested Army failures, three times was later recommended for promotion by the Navy. He has never been promoted. Nor has the Army done anything about some of the highranking officers who still run the Air Corps and whose gambling with people's lives is probably worse than Gen. Bennett Meyers' gambling with other people's money.

Quite a few good young officers are now getting recognition in the Army and are doing A-1 jobs. But when it comes to ousting those responsible for tragic errors, the old brass hat protective association still operates.

Merry-Go-Round

When Chuck Luckman held his first conference as food czar, one of his severest hecklers was Izzy Stone of PM. When Chuck Luckman bowed out as food czar, Izzy Stone was one of many who came around to congratulate him on the swell job he had done. . . . The Luckman Food Committee served without salary and with most of them paying their own expenses. . . . A colonel went to the barbershop in the Pentagon to get a haircut. Seventeen people waited ahead of him. After a long wait he was about to get into the barber's chair when a general walked in. "You're next," said the barber. . . . Then three other generals walked in; all got their haircuts ahead of the colonel. It doesn't pay for anyone less than a general to get his hair cut in the Pentagon barbershop.

History Teacher Truman

John Dean, a 16-year-old high-school student of Charleston, W. Va., who recently won an essay contest on what place organized labor holds in a democracy, called at the White House recently, accompanied by Senator Harley Kilgore and Eugene Carter, president of the West Virginia State Federation of Labor.

And when the youngster informed Truman that he was a student at Stonewall Jackson High School in Charleston, it caused the President to drop an interesting bit of American history.

"Coming from a school with a name like that," he said, "it's rather appropriate for you to be the winner of an essay contest on democracy. Stonewall Jackson was a great man and a great leader.

"Young man, do you realize that Stonewall Jackson was your age, sixteen, he walked all the way from Charleston to Washington and sat on the steps of the Secretary of War until he was given an appointment to the Military Academy at West Point?"

Young Dean said this was news to him, but he planned to tell his classmates all about it.

Under The Dome

. . . .The all-important cement case now pending before the Supreme Court will decide for the first time in history whether the Federal Trade Commission has the right to prosecute anti-trust cases—hitherto exercised chiefly by the Justice Department. For years the Federal Trade Commission, whose members constitute the oldest-aged group in Government, have scarcely moved on anti-triust cases. For instance, FTC oldsters deliberated the cement case for 10 long years. A companion case on price fixing of steel was held up by the Trade Commission for 26 years. . . . In contrast, the Attorney General has wound up major anti-trust suits in two to three years—especially under trustbusting Thurman Arnold.

Voters Expected To Blame Party In Power For Inflation

By MARK SULLIVAN

The four-part program for fighting inflation which Republican leaders in Congress have set up, is a taking of responsibility. President Truman had proposed a ten-point program when the session began, and this week a bill embodying some of the President's points had been sent to Congress. All this the Republicans now by-pass. They set up a program of their own. By this they take responsibility.

The political point of view, unhappily conspicuous in the immediate reaction, looks toward the Presidential election next year. If by Heaven-sent good fortune inflation has been checked, there will be no argument about it. But if during the campaign there is onerous inflation, on which party will voters put the blame? On the party that will have held the Presidency for 14 years, and had control of Congress during all but the last two? Or upon the party which has been in control of Congress the last two?

It is in that simple form that many voters will see the question. Campaign arguments will expand it. Republicans will dwell on the causes of inflation, and charge that the causes arose during the long period of Democratic administration and control of Congress. In that the Republicans will be accurate. Everybody must concede that the causes which gave rise to inflation came into existence before January of last year, when the Republicans got control of Congress. Whether some of the causes might have been prevented from arising is a different question, not susceptible to a simple answer. The largest single cause was the war. Some other causes, which might have been avoided, arose during the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations. All the causes—if we distinguish between the causes of inflation and the fact of its existence —arose before the Republicans got control of Congress two years ago.

Posed By Partisan Arguments

Democrats will dwell upon the checking and cure of inflation. They will say little about the causes, except to say that the largest single cause, the war, was unavoidable. Dwelling upon the checking and cure of inflation, the Democrats will say that President Truman proposed a ten-point program, that this would have worked check and cure had it been adopted; that the Republicans, controlling Congress, refused to adopt the Presdient's program; that instead they set up a program of their own.

Thus will the question be posed by partisan arguments, assuming that inflation exists next year. The answer will lie with the voters. Most of these are not likely to give consideration to intricate distinctions between the causes of inflation and the fact that it exists. Nor are voters likely to make the admirably careful distinction which Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board made the other day in testimony before a Congressional committee — between proposals which would deal with the causes of inflation, which would stop the forces making for its continuation, and on the other hand proposals which would deal merely with the effects of inflation.

All this, voters are likely to bypass. If inflation exists next year, they are likely to feel merely that the blame must be on one party or the other. As to which they blame, there is a recent precedent.

In the 1932 campaign was a condition similar to the present. The Republicans were in the Presidency, and had been for a long period, the administrations of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. But the Democrats were in control of the House of Representatives, they had won it in the Congressional election of 1930. The division of power, that is, was like what has existed since the Republicans got control of Congress two years ago.

Parallel Is Very Close

The parallel is very close. In 1932 the country was in a depression, comparable to inflation next year if it should become extreme. For curing the depression, President Hoover proposed measures to Congress. Some of them were frustrated by the Democrats much as the Republicans seem now about to frustrate President Truman's proposals for checking inflation.

In the 1932 campaign the Republicans, urging re-election of Mr. Hoover, argued that his proposals had been frustrated by Democratic control of the House. The election returns showed that the argument had little weight. Voters are likely to blame a bad state of the country upon the party in power. By that they mean the party in the Presidency, especially when it has held the Presidency for a long period. If this gives comfort to the Republicans it will give little to the country. What is desperately needed to deal with inflation is bi-partisan action.

Truman Getting Mixed Up; Does Not Seem Throughly Informed

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—President Truman either is getting a little mixed up on what is going on in Washington or else he isn't being kept as closely informed by his aides as he should be about what is happening to proposed legislation.

Certainly there is much puzzlement here over the President's outburst at his press conference in which he said he would not favor any relaxation or suspension of the anti-trust laws while he is in the White House. Maybe he didn't understand the question of the reporter. For the fact is that his own Secretary of Commerce, Averell Harriman, had proposed that very thing to Congress. Presumably a member of the Cabinet in charge of an important series of recommendations must be speaking with the approval of the President.

Maybe cabinet officers don't consult the President. Maybe Congress had better ignore what the cabinet secretaries say hereafter. Mr. Truman has added to the confusion and delay in getting an anti-inflation program enacted.

The problem of relaxing the anti-trust laws came up on Tuesday when Secretary Harriman proposed that the new laws contain a section granting "limited immunities" from anti-trust action when plans for voluntary polling of information or concerted price reduction are approved by the attorney general.

Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, Republican, was quick to excuse Mr. Truman's negative comment on the ground that he didn't understand the proposed legislation. Mr. Taft said that any agreement reached under the Wolcott bill would be subject to the approval of the President and would not be exempt from anti-trust laws unless so approved.

Not Keeping Too Well Informed

The question asked by the reporter concerned this proposal and Mr. Truman either had not heard of it before or didn't understand it. After all, a President has many things to do nowadays and there have been other indications that he has not been keeping too well informed.

Not long ago he expressed surprise that anyone should protest against the proposed gag on information to the press in the government departments. He seemed not to have heard of it, though the newspapers were printing a good deal about it. Maybe all this comes from delegating the presentation of programs and proposals to members of the Cabinet and others in the presidential entourage who write speeches for Mr. Truman on subjects which he hasn't the time to study himself.

It has been suggested that a President who is not thoroughly informed ought not to hold press conferences, as it reveals him to be unfamiliar with what is going on around him. It could give the country the impression that they have a synthetic executive in the White House who signs what others put before him and approves what he does not really understand.

It will be recalled that former Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace read a speech on foreign policy to Mr. Truman which the latter was reported by Mr. Wallace to have approved. Later, when the President did learn what the speech really meant, he withdrew his endorsement.

The anti-inflation maneuvers on the part of the President and Congress are headed for political battlefields. Apparently Mr. Truman thinks he can put the Republicans in a hole by demanding a drastic program which he knows neither Democrats nor Republicans would adopt because public opinion does not favor it. The Republicans, of course, will give the President a milder version of such legislation which he would have to take the responsibility of vetoing.

Truman To Blame For Delay

Already much valuable time has been lost through the President's delay in sending detailed proposals of his own to Congress. The congressional committees have been waiting for two weeks now for Mr. Truman's recommendations on wage and price control which he promises to send to Capitol Hill shortly.

Maybe the strategy is to get the stopgap legislation through first before introducing the more controversial pieces of domestic controls. Anyway, the country is rapidly getting the idea that the Truman Administration is divided within its own ranks, that it has no constructive program and that all it wants to do is place the responsibility for lack of drastic controls on the Republican Party. The 1948 campaign is already on.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Nicholas Murray Butler

COLUMBIA University probably reached its apogee as an institution of learning during the years just before World War I. Nicholas Murray Butler, together with John Dewey, launched Teachers College, which is the most decisive factor in education in the United States.

He lived long enough, 85 years, to be able to judge the consequences of the humanistic training.

Nicholas Murray Butler was himself a curious combination of the scholar and practical man, more so perhaps than Eliot of Harvard or Hadley of Yale. He built an institution of learning that touched life at every point, that could have the best of Chinese and Indo-Iranian scholarship and also practical shools of journalism and dentistry. At about the time of World War I, Columbia housed a galaxy of learned men unequaled in America. Dewey in philosophy, Robinson in history, Beard in government, Thorndike in psychology, Seligman in economics, Shotwell, Hayes and Muzzey in history, John Bassett Moore in international law, Hirth in Chinese, Jackson in Indo-Iranian languages, Pupin in physics, Boas in anthropology, and so on.

It was a wonderful time to be at Columbia. There was enthusiasm for scholarship, close contact with brilliant men, sharp interchange of ideas. And the spirit of the place, taking its tone from Butler, was broadly liberal in the sense that the educated man meets life in all its characteristics, and forms his own conclusions as a personal choice.

World War I created a paradox. Nicholas Murray Butler had done more than any man in America to stir an interest in world peace. The Carnegie Foundation and Butler's own International Conciliation propogandized for peace, for understanding and for world order. Butler had studied in Germany, had been honored by German universities.

Many of the Columbia professors were opposed to the war; they could not heap the abuse on Germany that was characteristic of that war. They could not hate their colleagues who were of German origin.

Large numbers of studets were inclined to oppose war. Columbia was the center of the Collegiate Anti-Militarism League which developed a following in American univsrsities. Butler's problem was no longer one in the realm of abstract philosophy; when war came, he was faced by patriotism or consistency. He chose the former and a number of professors left the university.

It was the first suppression of freedom of thought and action by Butler—and so far as I know the only one in his career.

Nicholas Murray Butler could have managed Columbia in his image, as it were. But he did not. He could have chosen men who reflected his views and his attitudes. But he chose the course of freedom. Often he was held accountable, by those who did not understand, for what appeared to be a confusion of ideas that came out of the schools on Morningside, but actually Butler, except in war, never interfered with his faculties. They pursued their searches in an atmosphere of freedom.

It is unfortunate that Columbia University has become so big. That, of course, is the misfortune of every American institution of learning these days. They grow bigger but not better, for bigness often interferes with the capacity to inspire, to stir the imagination of youth, to quarrel over ideas, to fight it out, as we used to do, in classroom. Actually most schools have too many students.

Nicholas Murray Butler lived so long that he was a witness to the beginning of higher education in America and also a witness to its great influence upon American life. He saw the shift from Latin and Greek to business administration and household arts. He also saw the changes implied in learning between the time when a university was headed by a man of profound scholarship and today when the Administrator is moving in—the man who may not know the difference between epistemology and eschatology but who does know the cost of laying bricks and the proper method of washing windows without wasting soap.

Butler was a scholar and Columbia stands a monument to his broad liberalism which gave America institutions of learning that could and did hold their own with the best in Europe.

Today's Talk

The Friendly Spirit

It will forever remain the wonder of most of us, why all disputes and disagreements cannot be settled in a friendly spirit. Undoubtedly the most idealistic organization ever conceived is that of the United Nations—and yet it has largely been turned into a debating society with bitter and cruel statements made, many of which have been untrue and unworthy of utterance.

No one ever expected that all the nations of the earth could get tobether and all agree on what is best for each and all, but even in so great an organization, it is possible for all discussion to be made in a friendly spirit.

What a waste of hope where there are bitterness and stubbornness involved where peace and good will are most desired! We all meet situations where there are many problems to be worked out, but, in the main, the free nations and the free peoples of this earth, have done just this. We all have to give and take, gain and lose in our many transactions in life.

All life is somewhat of a transaction. But if the right spirit is entered into, there can always be a happy and just solution to all the problems that face us. The great lawyer is that one who can keep most of his clients out of court.

Few drugs are so harmful as bitter and hateful words uttered in a dispute. The friendly spirit always wins most! We can well ask ourselves, after an unpleasant discussion, was it worth while? It never is. There is always a best and just decision to every problem. And that one is always gained through friendly talk.

Next to the Golden Rule, that saying of Lincoln's "With malice toward none; with charity for all should be the spirit about every problem where there may be disward n0ne; with charity for all," agreements and beliefs on both sides. And there is always a just solution to every problem. And when people get together in a friendly spirit the best result is consummated.

Hasty Action On Rent Control Group Not Necessary

A proposal for a rent control ordinance for Cumberland, which was submitted to the Mayor and City County a few days ago by Mr. Earl Snyder, vice president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, acting on behalf of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference, will, undoubtedly, receive the careful consideration it deserves, but hasty action on the part of the City Council is hardly necessary.

The proposed ordinance provides for the setting up of a three-man Emergency Rent Control Commission, with business, labor and the public represented. The public member, under the terms of the ordinance, would become chairman at $4,000 annually, while $3,000 would be paid each of the other members of the board. In addition to the stated salaries, there would be other expenses incurred for salaries of any employe or employes the commission deemed necessary, and office costs.

Except for the payment of the $10,000 in salaries to the commissioners, no estimate of the over-all cost is set forth, but it would, undoubtedly, be boosted by several thousands of dollars. In the absence of any fees being provided for in the ordinane to help defray the expense, the city would be expected to meet the cost of the operation at the expense of the taxpayers. It is questionable whether property-owners, who carry the bulk of the cost of city government, would approve.

Up to now, there have been no outstanding hardship cases of excessive rent increases brought to public attention. There have been increases of as much as 15 per cent by mutual consent of the landlord and the tenant, the latter agreeing to an increase in return for a lease on the property until the end of 1948. And there are instances where dwellings have been remodeled into apartments, or transformed into duplex houses. In all such cases those structures which were previously under rent control regulations are automatically decontrolled, and rents have been increased, and in some cases, too much. But such instances are few and cannot be considered in the overall picture.

Landlords, as a rule, have been hesitant to take advantage of this provision in the federal rent control law, and few have pressed tenants for an increase in return for a lease. Landlords of single-family houses in many cases appear reluctant to tie up their properties for as long as eighteen months, with the potential possibilities of favorable sales offers.

Rent increases, on the average, have not been for more than 5 per cent during the time since the new federal law became effective last June 30. Less than 10 per cent of the occupants of the 15,700,000 family dwellings in the nation has agreed to a 15 per cent increase, in return for up to 18-month leases. On the other hand, a spot check by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in twenty-nine cities shows that rents for the nation as a whole went up only 5.2 per cent, the increases ranging from $4 to $8 a month. That, certainly, is not a picture which should prove alarming.

It is proposed that the Cumberland ordinance become effective with the expiration of federal regulations, February 29. But in the face of indications that Congress will extend rent controls, in some form, beyond that date when it meets in regular session in January, if not during the current special session, the Mayor and City Commissioners can afford to mark time.

But if it should be found necessary to enact local rent control legislation, in the event rents be exhorbitantly increased, it must be on a more conservative cost basis than that suggested in the proposed ordinance now before the city governing body.

It will cost $40,000,000,000 to run the federal government next year. The oldfashioned watchdog of the Treasury must be on relief.

That "Revolt" Within The Republican Party

There has been some editorial comment lately —and not all of it in Democratic papers—about the "revolt" of G. O. P. Senators against the Republican leadership in Congress. This talk has been encouraged by the demands of Senator Aiken of Vermont for the resignation of Carroll B. Reece as chairman of the Republican National Committee. In some quarters the "revolt" rumors have been inflated in a fashion to surprise and delight the handful of revolters.

In plain fact, there is no split in Republican ranks today at all comparable to the "insurgent" and "progressive" movements that disrupted the Taft, Coolidge and Hoover administrations in the past. While half a dozen regular Republican Senators are more sympathetic to price controls than the majority leaders, only four Senators are in general revolt against the G. O. P. "platform" adopted in December, 1945. They are Aiken of Vermont, Langer of North Dakota, Morse of Oregon and Malone of Nevada.

Just three Republican Senators voted against the Taft-Hartley Act—Langer, Malone and Morse. Only three voted to sustain the President's veto of the tax reduction bill—Aiken, Langer and Morse. As a Washington orrespondent pointed out recently, this trio voted with their party only one-third of the time on the 89 "partisan votes" during the last session of Congress.

To speak of current attacks by Aiken, Langer and Morse as a "party revolt" is to exaggerate the importance of a political habit.

It is estimated that more than 300,000 cigarettes are lighted every minute, but it is not revealed how many of them burn table tops.

Farm Labor Survey

American farmers are expected to produce as much food as possible in 1948. The need will be as great, perhaps, as at any time during the war. To meet that goal, they will need sufficient manpower to cultivate their land and gather in the crops.

It is almost always easier to solve a problem if it is revealed in advance how big it will be. Employment services in many states are now tackling this job. Questionnaires are being sent to farmers. If the blanks are filled out and returned promptly, it will be easier to provide individual employers with help when they need it.

Inflation seems to have hit everywhere. The former dime chain letter has gone up to two dollars.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

SURGERY IN APPENDICITIS

APPENDICITIS is probably as old as man himself. A long time ago Fernel and Heister came close to the truth about the disease, but it was never recognized until 61 years ago when Reginald Fitz first described it. A year later, the first appendectomy was performed.

It did not take long for the profession to realize the value of this operation in saving the lives of patients in whom complications existed or were inevitable. A longer period was required to convince them of the benefit of early surgery. Heated debates were still going on in 1920 but ultimately statistics showed that without question more individuals survived if the appendix was removed as soon as possible after inflammation set in than if the medico waited until rupture or peritonitis occurred. Some members of the laity are still skeptical but in spite of occasional mistakes in diagnosis more persons are alive today because they accepted the advice of the physician and were operated upon.

According to the Metropolitan Life Insurance company there has been among their policyholders a decline of more than 70 per cent in deaths from acute appendicits. Improvements in surgical technic have also helped. Fifteen years ago 18,000 individuals died of appendicitis; in 1943 there were only 8,100 in spite of an increase in population. Furthermore, with the added impetus of the wonder drugs, a much lower mortality rate can be expected. In good institutions, less than one-half of one per cent of operated patients succumb which is a far cry from the figures before surgery and even during the days when appendectomies first came into general use.

The physician does not deserve all the credit as the people themselves have learned not to disregard abdominal pain. Mother no longer gives her offspring laxatives for tummyaches. This is especially true if distress is associated with nausea and vomiting. As inflammation becomes more firmly established, aching localizes in the lower right side.

Herein lies the tricky nature of appendicitis because the amount of pain and tenderness is no index of the severity of the disease. All physicians have encountered patients in whom the outward manifestations were slight but at operation the organ was found to be ruptured or gangrenous. The opposite is true also. It is little wonder, therefore, that the experienced medical man prefers not to take a chance since, thru surgery, more lives are saved. Moreover, he is less ligely to be criticized if a questionable organ is removed now and then than to wait until the appendix perforates and peritonitis sets in.

Even though the incidence of the disease is not declining, times are changing thanks to the sulfonamides, penicillin, and streptomycin. Should complications arise, the physician has more measures than formerly to combat them. As a result, he can afford to delay until laboratory proof of the diagnosis is forthcoming.

INCLUDE THEM IN DIET

H. J. writes: Are fruit juices good for arthritis?

REPLY

Yes, as part of the diet recommended in arthritis. They supply vitamins and have a laxative effect.

AGING EYES

A. S. writes: I have much moisture in my eyes and doctors cannot give me relief. Could this be due to advanced age?

REPLY

Yes, since, with advancing years, the lids sometimes sag. Thus the mechanism of the tear glands is unable to function perfectly causing the eyes to "water" more than they should.

COLD AND RESISTANCE

R. C. writes: Does a person necessarily have to be in a rundown condition to catch cold?

REPLY

No, but it helps.

SHOULDER PAIN

J. T. writes: Is bursitis the same as neuritis? My sore shoulder has been diagnosed as both.

REPLY

No, these are two distinct conditions. The nerves and bursa are so close together in this region, however, that it is not always easy to differentiate between them.

CONSTRICTED BLOOD VESSELS

C. H. writes: Do you think cold weather affects the heart?

REPLY

Yes, when an abnormality is present. Individuals with coronary artery disturbances often complain of chest pain on a cold or windy day because the amount of blood flowing to the heart muscle is reduced.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Pretty sweet of old Hirohito to veto all thoughts of a second Pearl Harbor. We cannot afford another one. Neither can Hirohito.

The Mikado visited Hiroshima wearing the imperial derby of his illustrious ancestors. And he is almost convinced that Japan has recovered from the beating it gave us.

We didn't exactly blow up the boiler at Hiroshima. The town exploded like the paper bag it was. And can be rebuilt from card board, chewing gum and box tops.

Only one thing we can guarantee future enemies is disinterested demolition. When our house-wreckers turn on the works we even crack the door knobs.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lt. Col. Laux Stymied In His Efforts To Safeguard Paratroopers; PM's Izzy Stone Does About-Face; Truman Teaches History

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—Here is more about the 800 U. S. paratroopers shot down by our own troops over Sicily and the Army's attempt not to rectify the error, but to punish officers who wanted to correct the causes of this tragedy.

One of the men who took part in this Sicilian airborne infantry operation and was lucky enough to live through it was Lt. Col. David Laux. Afterward, he directed his energies toward making sure that future Army transports carrying paratroopers were equipped with self-sealing gasoline tanks so they could not be shot down so easily by anti-aircraft fire. A transport carrying paratroopers must necessarily fly low and slow; therefore, it is an easy target from the ground, no matter who is firing. And the planes shot down over Sicily had no self-sealing tanks, armor plate or any other protection whatsoever.

However, when Laux was opposed on better protection for these planes, he finally wrote a letter direct to Secretary of War Stimson, who turned the letter over to one of the officers opposing Laux on self-sealing tanks—Gen. Barney Giles. And Giles immediately ordered Laux to Alaska.

A day or two later, after Col. Laux had arrived in Alaska, Giles followed him up with an amazing 600-word telegram, which, if Congress ever gets around to investigate, would be revealing evidence.

Gen. Giles telegraphed Gen. Dale V. Gaffney at Nome, Alaska, directing him to secure from Col. Laux all reports, papers and letters relative to self-sealing tanks and paratrooper transports. The telegram also asked that Laux authorize the Air Corps in Washington to pick up any papers in Laux' home pertaining to the protection of paratroop planes.

Too Tough For Barney

By this time Gen. Gaffney smelled a rat. And being a tough Irishman with a son who was in a troop-carrier outfit, he got on the telephone and proceeded to bawl out Gen. Giles for sending Col. Laux to Alaska.

"When I want any officers of lieutenant colonel rank up here, I'll make them myself," he said. "You don't need to concern yourself with sending them to me."

When Giles remonstrated, Gaffney shot back:

"Don't give me any of that, Barney. What's the matter? Has Laux got something on you?"

Thus, Col. Laux, the man who tried to prevent future mistakes in the Army, sat out the rest of the war in Nome, Alaska, nearest point to Siberia.

Meanwhile, the Army had searched his files, and frankly admitted they wanted to burn all his reports, letters, etc., which demanded self-sealing tanks in troop-carrying planes. Laux managed to keep one copy of his letter to Stimson, however—the letter recently published in this column.

In this letter, Col. Laux told the Secretary of War that there had been "criminal negligence" in regard to troop-carrying transports and that he, Laux, "was pepared to prove it."

However, no investigation was ever made. Meanwhile, Brig. Gen. "Mike" Dunn, who was reduced in rank when he protested Army failures, three times was later recommended for promotion by the Navy. He has never been promoted. Nor has the Army done anything about some of the highranking officers who still run the Air Corps and whose gambling with people's lives is probably worse than Gen. Bennett Meyers' gambling with other people's money.

Quite a few good young officers are now getting recognition in the Army and are doing A-1 jobs. But when it comes to ousting those responsible for tragic errors, the old brass hat protective association still operates.

Merry-Go-Round

When Chuck Luckman held his first conference as food czar, one of his severest hecklers was Izzy Stone of PM. When Chuck Luckman bowed out as food czar, Izzy Stone was one of many who came around to congratulate him on the swell job he had done. . . . The Luckman Food Committee served without salary and with most of them paying their own expenses. . . . A colonel went to the barbershop in the Pentagon to get a haircut. Seventeen people waited ahead of him. After a long wait he was about to get into the barber's chair when a general walked in. "You're next," said the barber. . . . Then three other generals walked in; all got their haircuts ahead of the colonel. It doesn't pay for anyone less than a general to get his hair cut in the Pentagon barbershop.

History Teacher Truman

John Dean, a 16-year-old high-school student of Charleston, W. Va., who recently won an essay contest on what place organized labor holds in a democracy, called at the White House recently, accompanied by Senator Harley Kilgore and Eugene Carter, president of the West Virginia State Federation of Labor.

And when the youngster informed Truman that he was a student at Stonewall Jackson High School in Charleston, it caused the President to drop an interesting bit of American history.

"Coming from a school with a name like that," he said, "it's rather appropriate for you to be the winner of an essay contest on democracy. Stonewall Jackson was a great man and a great leader.

"Young man, do you realize that Stonewall Jackson was your age, sixteen, he walked all the way from Charleston to Washington and sat on the steps of the Secretary of War until he was given an appointment to the Military Academy at West Point?"

Young Dean said this was news to him, but he planned to tell his classmates all about it.

Under The Dome

. . . The all-important cement case now pending before the Supreme Court will decide for the first time in history whether the Federal Trade Commission has the right to prosecute anti-trust cases—hitherto exercised chiefly by the Justice Department. For years the Federal Trade Commission, whose members constitute the oldest-aged group in Government, have scarcely moved on anti-triust cases. For instance, FTC oldsters deliberated the cement case for 10 long years. A companion case on price fixing of steel was held up by the Trade Commission for 26 years. . . . In contrast, the Attorney General has wound up major anti-trust suits in two to three years—especially under trustbusting Thurman Arnold.

Voters Expected To Blame Party In Power For Inflation

By MARK SULLIVAN

The four-part program for fighting inflation which Republican leaders in Congress have set up, is a taking of responsibility. President Truman had proposed a ten-point program when the session began, and this week a bill embodying some of the President's points had been sent to Congress. All this the Republicans now by-pass. They set up a program of their own. By this they take responsibility.

The political point of view, unhappily conspicuous in the immediate reaction, looks toward the Presidential election next year. If by Heaven-sent good fortune inflation has been checked, there will be no argument about it. But if during the campaign there is onerous inflation, on which party will voters put the blame? On the party that will have held the Presidency for 14 years, and had control of Congress during all but the last two? Or upon the party which has been in control of Congress the last two?

It is in that simple form that many voters will see the question. Campaign arguments will expand it. Republicans will dwell on the causes of inflation, and charge that the causes arose during the long period of Democratic administration and control of Congress. In that the Republicans will be accurate. Everybody must concede that the causes which gave rise to inflation came into existence before January of last year, when the Republicans got control of Congress. Whether some of the causes might have been prevented from arising is a different question, not susceptible to a simple answer. The largest single cause was the war. Some other causes, which might have been avoided, arose during the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations. All the causes—if we distinguish between the causes of inflation and the fact of its existence —arose before the Republicans got control of Congress two years ago.

Posed By Partisan Arguments

Democrats will dwell upon the checking and cure of inflation. They will say little about the causes, except to say that the largest single cause, the war, was unavoidable. Dwelling upon the checking and cure of inflation, the Democrats will say that President Truman proposed a ten-point program, that this would have worked check and cure had it been adopted; that the Republicans, controlling Congress, refused to adopt the Presdient's program; that instead they set up a program of their own.

Thus will the question be posed by partisan arguments, assuming that inflation exists next year. The answer will lie with the voters. Most of these are not likely to give consideration to intricate distinctions between the causes of inflation and the fact that it exists. Nor are voters likely to make the admirably careful distinction which Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board made the other day in testimony before a Congressional committee — between proposals which would deal with the causes of inflation, which would stop the forces making for its continuation, and on the other hand proposals which would deal merely with the effects of inflation.

All this, voters are likely to bypass. If inflation exists next year, they are likely to feel merely that the blame must be on one party or the other. As to which they blame, there is a recent precedent.

In the 1932 campaign was a condition similar to the present. The Republicans were in the Presidency, and had been for a long period, the administrations of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. But the Democrats were in control of the House of Representatives, they had won it in the Congressional election of 1930. The division of power, that is, was like what has existed since the Republicans got control of Congress two years ago.

Parallel Is Very Close

The parallel is very close. In 1932 the country was in a depression, comparable to inflation next year if it should become extreme. For curing the depression, President Hoover proposed measures to Congress. Some of them were frustrated by the Democrats much as the Republicans seem now about to frustrate President Truman's proposals for checking inflation.

In the 1932 campaign the Republicans, urging re-election of Mr. Hoover, argued that his proposals had been frustrated by Democratic control of the House. The election returns showed that the argument had little weight. Voters are likely to blame a bad state of the country upon the party in power. By that they mean the party in the Presidency, especially when it has held the Presidency for a long period. If this gives comfort to the Republicans it will give little to the country. What is desperately needed to deal with inflation is bi-partisan action.

Truman Getting Mixed Up; Does Not Seem Throughly Informed

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—President Truman either is getting a little mixed up on what is going on in Washington or else he isn't being kept as closely informed by his aides as he should be about what is happening to proposed legislation.

Certainly there is much puzzlement here over the President's outburst at his press conference in which he said he would not favor any relaxation or suspension of the anti-trust laws while he is in the White House. Maybe he didn't understand the question of the reporter. For the fact is that his own Secretary of Commerce, Averell Harriman, had proposed that very thing to Congress. Presumably a member of the Cabinet in charge of an important series of recommendations must be speaking with the approval of the President.

Maybe cabinet officers don't consult the President. Maybe Congress had better ignore what the cabinet secretaries say hereafter. Mr. Truman has added to the confusion and delay in getting an anti-inflation program enacted.

The problem of relaxing the anti-trust laws came up on Tuesday when Secretary Harriman proposed that the new laws contain a section granting "limited immunities" from anti-trust action when plans for voluntary polling of information or concerted price reduction are approved by the attorney general.

Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, Republican, was quick to excuse Mr. Truman's negative comment on the ground that he didn't understand the proposed legislation. Mr. Taft said that any agreement reached under the Wolcott bill would be subject to the approval of the President and would not be exempt from anti-trust laws unless so approved.

Not Keeping Too Well Informed

The question asked by the reporter concerned this proposal and Mr. Truman either had not heard of it before or didn't understand it. After all, a President has many things to do nowadays and there have been other indications that he has not been keeping too well informed.

Not long ago he expressed surprise that anyone should protest against the proposed gag on information to the press in the government departments. He seemed not to have heard of it, though the newspapers were printing a good deal about it. Maybe all this comes from delegating the presentation of programs and proposals to members of the Cabinet and others in the presidential entourage who write speeches for Mr. Truman on subjects which he hasn't the time to study himself.

It has been suggested that a President who is not thoroughly informed ought not to hold press conferences, as it reveals him to be unfamiliar with what is going on around him. It could give the country the impression that they have a synthetic executive in the White House who signs what others put before him and approves what he does not really understand.

It will be recalled that former Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace read a speech on foreign policy to Mr. Truman which the latter was reported by Mr. Wallace to have approved. Later, when the President did learn what the speech really meant, he withdrew his endorsement.

The anti-inflation maneuvers on the part of the President and Congress are headed for political battlefields. Apparently Mr. Truman thinks he can put the Republicans in a hole by demanding a drastic program which he knows neither Democrats nor Republicans would adopt because public opinion does not favor it. The Republicans, of ccurse, will give the President a milder version of such legislation which he would have to take the responsibility of vetoing.

Truman To Blame For Delay

Already much valuable time has been lost through the President's delay in sending detailed proposals of his own to Congress. The congressional committees have been waiting for two weeks now for Mr. Truman's recommendations on wage and price control which he promises to send to Capitol Hill shortly.

Maybe the strategy is to get the stopgap legislation through first before introducing the more controversial pieces of domestic controls. Anyway, the country is rapidly getting the idea that the Truman Administration is divided within its own ranks, that it has no constructive program and that all it wants to do is place the responsibility for lack of drastic controls on the Republican Party. The 1948 campaign is already on.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Nicholas Murray Butler

COLUMBIA University probably reached its apogee as an institution of learning during the years just before World War I. Nicholas Murray Butler, together with John Dewey, launched Teachers College, which is the most decisive factor in education in the United States.

He lived long enough, 85 years, to be able to judge the consequences of the humanistic training.

Nicholas Murray Butler was himself a curious combination of the scholar and practical man, more so perhaps than Eliot of Harvard or Hadley of Yale. He built an institution of learning that touched life at every point, that could have the best of Chinese and Indo-Iranian scholarship and also practical shools of journalism and dentistry. At about the time of World War I, Columbia housed a galaxy of learned men unequaled in America. Dewey in philosophy, Robinson in history, Beard in government, Thorndike in psychology, Seligman in economics, Shotwell, Hayes and Muzzey in history, John Bassett Moore in international law, Hirth in Chinese, Jackson in Indo-Iranian languages, Pupin in physics, Boas in anthropology, and so on.

It was a wonderful time to be at Columbia. There was enthusiasm for scholarship, close contact with brilliant men, sharp interchange of ideas. And the spirit of the place, taking its tone from Butler, was broadly liberal in the sense that the educated man meets life in all its characteristics, and forms his own conclusions as a personal choice.

World War I created a paradox. Nicholas Murray Butler had done more than any man in America to stir an interest in world peace. The Carnegie Foundation and Butler's own International Conciliation propogandized for peace, for understanding and for world order. Butler had studied in Germany, had been honored by German universities.

Many of the Columbia professors were opposed to the war; they could not heap the abuse on Germany that was characteristic of that war. They could not hate their colleagues who were of German origin.

Large numbers of studets were inclined to oppose war. Columbia was the center of the Collegiate Anti-Militarism League which developed a following in American univsrsities. Butler's problem was no longer one in the realm of abstract philosophy; when war came, he was faced by patriotism or consistency. He chose the former and a number of professors left the university.

It was the first suppression of freedom of thought and action by Butler—and so far as I know the only one in his career.

Nicholas Murray Butler could have managed Columbia in his image, as it were. But he did not. He could have chosen men who reflected his views and his attitudes. But he chose the course of freedom. Often he was held accountable, by those who did not understand, for what appeared to be a confusion of ideas that came out of the schools on Morningside, but actually Butler, except in war, never interfered with his faculties. They pursued their searches in an atmosphere of freedom.

It is unfortunate that Columbia University has become so big. That, of course, is the misfortune of every American institution of learning these days. They grow bigger but not better, for bigness often interferes with the capacity to inspire, to stir the imagination of youth, to quarrel over ideas, to fight it out, as we used to do, in classroom. Actually most schools have too many students.

Nicholas Murray Butler lived so long that he was a witness to the beginning of higher education in America and also a witness to its great influence upon American life. He saw the shift from Latin and Greek to business administration and household arts. He also saw the changes implied in learning between the time when a university was headed by a man of profound scholarship and today when the Administrator is moving in—the man who may not know the difference between epistemology and eschatology but who does know the cost of laying bricks and the proper method of washing windows without wasting soap.

Butler was a scholar and Columbia stands a monument to his broad liberalism which gave America institutions of learning that could and did hold their own with the best in Europe.

Today's Talk

The Friendly Spirit

It will forever remain the wonder of most of us, why all disputes and disagreements cannot be settled in a friendly spirit. Undoubtedly the most idealistic organization ever conceived is that of the United Nations—and yet it has largely been turned into a debating society with bitter and cruel statements made, many of which have been untrue and unworthy of utterance.

No one ever expected that all the nations of the earth could get together and all agree on what is best for each and all, but even in so great an organization, it is possible for all discussion to be made in a friendly spirit.

What a waste of hope where there are bitterness and stubbornness involved where peace and good will are most desired! We all meet situations where there are many problems to be worked out, but, in the main, the free nations and the free peoples of this earth, have done just this. We all have to give and take, gain and lose in our many transactions in life.

All life is somewhat of a transaction. But if the right spirit is entered into, there can always be a happy and just solution to all the problems that face us. The great lawyer is that one who can keep most of his clients out of court.

Few drugs are so harmful as bitter and hateful words uttered in a dispute. The friendly spirit always wins most! We can well ask ourselves, after an unpleasant discussion, was it worth while? It never is. There is always a best and just decision to every problem. And that one is always gained through friendly talk.

Next to the Golden Rule, that saying of Lincoln's "With malice toward none; with charity for all should be the spirit about every problem where there may be disward nOne; with charity for all," agreements and beliefs on both sides. And there is always a just solution to every problem. And when people get together in a friendly spirit the best result is consummated.

Stock Market, Led By Oils, Enjoys Fairly Active, Selective Recovery

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP) — Paced by oils, the stock market enjoyed a fairly active but selective recovery today.

Transfers of 1,220,000 shares compared with 940,000 Thursday and were the best since last Friday, which, in turn were the largest since October 30.

Up fractions to a point or so, some at new 1947 highs, were Houston Oil at 27¾, Sunray 11, Phillips Petroluem 57¾, Pure Oil 26¾, Sinclair Oil 16⅝, Continental Oil 50, Plymouth Oil 33, Texas Company 58, Ohio Oil 30¼, Texas Gulf Producing 19 and Panhandle Producing 7⅝.

Other gainers of one to three points were Nickel Plate Railway at 44 (high for the year), Eastern Stainless Steel 19¾, Gillette 32, Douglas Aircraft 47½, Goodrich 57½, Youngstown Sheet 75¾, American Smelting 57⅝, Phelps Dodge 46⅝, Continental Can 32⅝ and Electric Power and Light 17⅛.

In the Curb a hoisted dividend advanced National Pressure Cooker two points. Other forward leaners were Midwest Oil, Woodley Petroleum Weyenberg Shoe, N. J. Zinc, American Gas, Cities Service and Humble Oil. Laggards were George A. Fuller, Kaiser-Frazer, Adams Hat (still reflecting a cut dividend) and Aluminum of America. Turnover here was 310,000 shares versus 290,000 yesterday.

The bond market made a good showing in the liveliest dealings in nearly a year.

Sales expanded to $1,730,000, a high since January 3, from $6,720,000 Thursday.

United States Governments barely budged in the over-the-counter market, the Victory Loan 2½s of December 1967-72 remaining at 101 bid.

Russia Fails To Veto Trip To The Brewery

ASMARA, Eritrae—(AP)—The heads of the American and Russian delegations on the four power commission investigating the former Italian colonies reached agreement on at least one phase of the inquiry. The commission program called for visits to Asmara's brewery and a winery on the same morning. John Utter, the American commissioner, suggested it would be a shame to pack two such studies into so short a time. A. F. Fedorov, the Russian chief, agreed.

Russians Volunteer To Work In Mines

MOSCOW—(AP)—Messages from Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, report a voluntary movement of youth to go into the mines of the Donbas, the first contingent numbering 8,000.

"This patriotic movement," said Pravda, "launched by Komsomols of the Ukrainian cities of Stalino and Voroshilovgrad, is growin every day."

Pigs Can't Outwit A Nebraska Sheriff

FALLS CITY, Neb.—(AP)—It didn't take Sheriff Vern Atkins long to solve a "hog theft" reported by the Falls City Mercantile Company.

The sheriff made a careful investigation of the building near which the four hogs were being fed. He found a hole under the building. Then he coaxed the four porkers out from under the structure.

Merry Christmas

The greatest joy of the Christmas season is that of the little tots who awaken early Christmas morning and gaze in pleased wonder at the marvelous Christmas tree and the beautiful toys Santa Claus has brought.

The happy expressions on these little faces is worth all the trouble the grown-ups have taken to make the occasion a perfect one. Scenes like the one pictured here are among the happiest memories of childhood.

A little later on these children will begin to learn the deeper significance of Christmas. They will learn that the gifts of their parents, in the mythical role of Santa Claus are but symbols of God's great gift to humanity.

The good will, love and unselfishness of the Christmastide are but a foreshadowing of the peace and good will that is to prevail among men through the teachings of Jesus, whose birth the Christmas season commemorates.

Parents should endeavor to lead their children into an understanding of this deeper meaning of Christmas — a task in which the Church stands ready to cooperate.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily

Merry Christmas

The greatest joy of the Christmas season is that of the little tots who awaken early Christmas morning and gaze in pleased wonder at the marvelous Christmas tree and the beautiful toys Santa Claus has brought.

The happy expressions on these little faces is worth all the trouble the grown-ups have taken to make the occasion a perfect one. Scenes like the one pictured here are among the happiest memories of childhood.

A little later on these children will begin to learn the deeper significance of Christmas. They will learn that the gifts of their parents, in the mythical role of Santa Claus are but symbols of God's great gift to humanity.

The good will, love and unselfishness of the Christmastide are but a foreshadowing of the peace and good will that is to prevail among men through the teachings of Jesus, whose birth the Christmas season commemorates.

Parents should endeavor to lead their children into an understanding of this deeper meaning of Christmas — a task in which the Church stands ready to cooperate.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily

Dukes Lose Thriller, 53-52; Potomac State Wins, 60-56

Becker's Goal Gives Altoona Victory Here

Winning Shot In Air At The Final Whistle

Moe Becker's Field goal in the final second of play enabled the Altoona (Pa.) Edwards to come from behind and nose out the Cumberland Dukes by the score of 53 to 52 in an All-American Basketball League thriller last night at the State Armory before 400 persons.

The Amvets were leading 52-49 with a minute yet to play when Dom Asmonga stole the ball in mid-court and scored on a dribbled-in shot to put the Pennsylvanians only one point in the rear.

Becker, who played with the Cumberland Collegians in 1941, then came through with the winning basket. His shot, fired from the sidelines was in the air as the final whistle blew, the ball rolled around the rim for a moment and then dropped through the draperies.

The victory gave Altoona a record of one victory and one defeat in the league while the loss was Cumberland's second against one win in the six-club pro circuit.

Last night's game was a hammer-and-tongs battle from start to finish and had the fans on their toes during the rugged closing minutes of play in which the tactics of the players bordered on roughhouse.

The score was tied at 11-11 in the first quarter, 28-28 in the second period, 31-31 in the third period and 43-43 and 49-49 in the last stanza.

Altoona scored the first seven points of the game but the Dukes rallied for 11 points and forged to the fore at the quarter whistle, 17-12. The Dukes led throughout the second half with the exception of the time the score was tied at 28-28 and at intermission the count was 31-30.

The Edwards took over the lead in the third quarter and as the teams entered the final heat the count was 43-38. Bell's goal tied the score at 43-43 and Geatz's basket put the Dukes ahead in the 4th quarter. After Bystura's two-pointer evened the count for the final time at 49-49 Geatz caged a free throw and Overhaus tipped in a goal to give Cumberland a 52-49 edge. Then Osmanga and Becker cashed in the final goals of the game.

Stan Noszka and Jimmy Atkins, speedy negro player, paced the Altoona attack with 15 and 14 points while Bob Pence and George Geatz topped the locals with 15 and 13.

Twelve personal fouls were called on Altoona and nine on the home team.

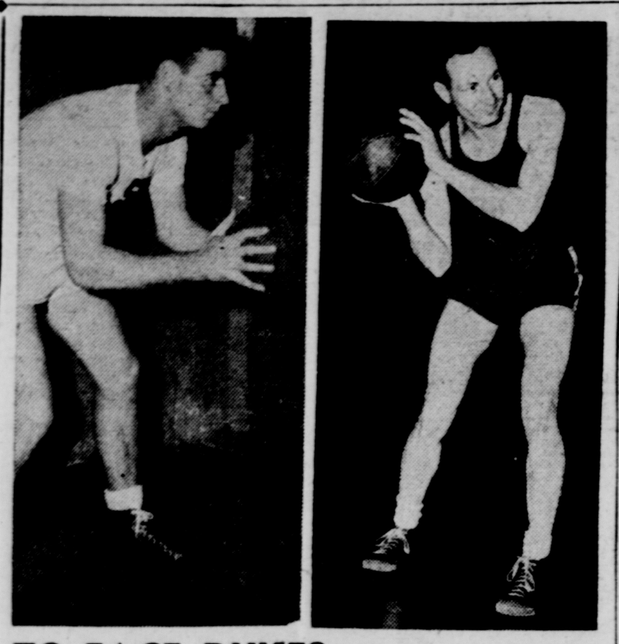
"Sugar" Is Fit

DETROIT, Dec. 12—(INS)—Welterweight champion "Sugar" Ray Robinson was declared physically fit today for his December 19 title go with Chuck Taylor, but refused to disclose his weight.

Five observers have been speculating that the champion may have difficulty making the welter limit of 147 pounds.



TO FACE DUKES—Leo Mogus, left, 6-fot-4 center, formerly of Youngstown College, the Cleveland Rebels and Toronto Huskies, and Rudy Debnar, right, who starred with the Akron Goodyears after playing at Duquesne University, will be seen in action with the Youngstown Cubs Sunday night at the State Armory when the Ohioans tangle with the Cumberland Dukes in an All-American Pro Basketball League contest. The game will get under way at 9 o'clock.

Youngstown Cubs Will Test Dukes Tomorrow Night

Paul Birch's Passers Pay First Visit Here

Coach Paul Birch's Youngstown (Ohio) Cubs will come to Cumberland tomorrow night to battle it out with the Cumberland Dukes in what should prove to be an interesting game at the State Armory.

Youngstown boasts one of the strongest lineups in the newly formed six-club pro circuit and the fact that Birch, formerly of Duquesne University, the New York Celtics, Fort Wayne Zollners and Pittsburgh Ironmen; Leo Mogus, Youngstown College ace; Rudy Debnar, ex-Duquesne U. and Akron Goodyears' star; and Fred Paine, formerly of Westminster College, are in the visitors' lineup should serve as a good drawing card and attract a large crowd to the armory.

Other players on the Youngstown roster include John Bosak of Farrell, Pa.; Charley Butler, formerly of Notre Dame; John Cramb, Youngstown College; Ben Flossie and Ned Endress, from Akron University; Paul Minner, ex-Westminster College player and Lou Gabriel and George Naples, who starred in high school for Youngstown quints.

All of the Cubs are over six feet tall except Flossie, who is five-feet-eight.

It will be the third game in as many days for the Dukes. The locals played Altoona here last night and play a return game with the Edwards in Mosque Temple, Altoona, tonight.

Bill Hahn and Clifton Van Roby will officiate in the Sunday night contest here. The starting time is 9 o'clock.

Poll On Graziano Is Termed "Farce"

Illinois Says N.B.A. Voting Was Biased

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP) — The Illinois State Athletic Commission today described as "a complete farce" a recent poll by the National Boxing Association which showed sentiment slightly in favor of permitting middleweight champion Rocky Graziano's return to the ring.

The Illinois Commission was the first to bar Graziano because of his war record and several other states passed similar resolutions which prompted the NBA to conduct its poll.

"In our opinion, no poll could have been more partial from its inception," the commission declared, "and this commission protested vigorously the manner in which the poll was being made.

"It is our considered opinion that the poll was a complete farce, the result of which certainly does not reflect credit upon the N. B. A., which is supposed to be the controlling influence for good in boxing, instead of a factor in dragging the sport into the gutter. It is discouraging to have the governing body conduct a poll as biased as this one was.

"x x x desertion from the armed forces of one's counthy in time of war cannot be dealt with too heavily—certainly it should not be condoned."

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Football coaches and players are pretty much satisfied with the rules as they are, Lou Little said today after studying approximately 1,000 letters and cards.

Little, coach at Columbia, is chairman of the Football Coaches' Rules Committee and each fall he canvasses his fellow mentors for rules suggestions, ideas or innovations. He compiles the answers and mails the result to the members as a basis for discussions at the annual meeting.

Gus Lesnevich May Get Title Go With Louis

Jersey Joe Walcott Intimates "Brushoff"

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, his left eye still slightly puffed and discolored as a result of last week's bout with Jersey Joe Walcott, appeared before the press today to announce that he will retire from the ring after one more title defense in June.

Seated behind Mike Jacobs' big desk in the 20th Century Sporting Club office, Louis met or fended off a barrage of questions almost as troublesome as the punches Walcott threw. Joe easily retained his crown as wise-cracking champion of the pugilistic trade and managed to bring forth the following bits of information:

(1) That he plans to fight once more, in June, against any opponent the 20th Century Club may select.

(2) That light heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich has as good a chance as Walcott of becoming Louis' opponent for that fight.

(3) That after his retirement, he will engage to some extent in several business enterprises, including a publicity agency with which he has been associated ever since he left the army and the soft drink concern, which bears his name, and which will add beer to its line of products.

(4) That he will leave for England Feb. 19 for a month's visit in connection with the "health and holiday" program and will start training again at French Lick, Ind., immediately after his return.

(5) That he thinks he just had a bad night, due probably to reducing his weight from 215 to 211 pounds in the last two days before the Walcott bout and that he thinks he would beat Walcott in a return engagement. And

(6) That his now-famous remark, "I'm sorry, Joe" to Walcott, merely meant that he was sorry that Jersey Joe and his handlers were so obviously perturbed about the decision. "I didn't think I had won or lost. I just wanted to get out of that ring because I had looked so bad," he further explained.

Louis Has Had Enough

Opening the mass interview, Louis announced: "It will be my last fight in June. After that the next fight I have will be in a bar room. I've had enough; I've been around a long time."

Harry Markson, 20th Century Club publicity man, interjected "with the reservation, of course, that all prima donnas are entitled to six retirements."

Joe just grinned at that, and when a reporter asked: ""Are you pretty well fixed financially?" Louis said: "I'm just on leave of absence from the Ford plant. I can always go back there."

Insisting that it is the promoter's job to make matches, Joe insisted that Lesnevich had at least as good a chance as Walcott of getting the title shot.

"I'm not looking for revenge; I just want one more good fight. I'll be good as ever next time out. I had a bad night against Walcott; I couldn't go get him. That's because I wanted to make 212 pounds; Manny (Trainer Manny Seamon) wanted me to make 214."

When he finally was pinned down on whether he would prefer to fight Walcott or Lesnevich, Louis said: "I think Lesnevich is tougher. I think if Lesnevich had me in the position this boy had me in, he would have knocked me out."

"Brushoff" Is Intimated

Walcott, in New York for the day, expressed disappointment at Louis' statement and intimated the champion probably was giving him the "brushoff."

"I earned the right to fight Louis again," Jersey Joe commented. "I always considered him a great champion and a fine sportsman but now with him talking about meeting Lesnevich instead of me I don't know."

Walcott's handlers stated Jersey Joe would not be willing to engage in a return match for less than 30 per cent of the gate.

The Walcott spokesman said if Louis fought Lesnevich in his one remaining go as a champion then Jersey Joe would meet an unnamed opponent in Philadelphia in the summer and ask the N.B.A. for recognition of the championship.

"It looks as if Louis is anxious to retire as a champion," he added. "He is thinking of the money he can get in various enterprises afterwards. The best way for him to retire as champion is to fight Lesnevich instead of Walcott."

Maryland Horse Racing Revenue Is $5,095,324

Bettors At Fairgo Contribute $103,847

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 12 —(AP)—Comptroller James J. Lacy announced today state revenues from horse racing during 1947 totaled $5,095,324.

Because of the new law taxing racing, there were no comparable figures available, but Lacy said receipts during the fall meets were above expectations.

Under the law, Baltimore City and the counties receive 50 per cent of the revenues at mile tracks—divided on a population basis—and the state's general fund the rest. One-fourth of the half-mile track receipts go to Baltimore City and the counties, another fourth to the state fair board and the rest to the general fund.

The breakage at the tracks—the odd pennies between one and ten cents not computed in paying off bets—goes half to the state fair board and half to the tracks.

Pimlico bettors made the most generous contribution to the state revenues with a total of $1,234,012. Laurel was second with $1,131,206. Bowie paid 1,054,656; Havre de Grace $1,059,503; Bel Air $153,535; Cumberland $103,847; Hagerstown $99,751; Marlboro $124,002 and Timonium $125,815. Incidental fees brought in $9,173.

According to the law, of this total Baltimore City and the counties will receive $2,396,094, the fair board $345,978 and the general fund $2,453,251. A $72,280 refund for 1946 over payment at Pimlico was paid by the state.

Under the legislation the major tracks now pay a $1,000 a day license fee and 4 per cent on total betting. The smaller — half - mile—tracks pay $50 a day license fee to the county treasurer in the county in which the race is held, 1 per cent on the first $500,000 bet, 2 per cent on the next $500,000 and 4 per cent on wagers over $1,000,000.

During the last fiscal year the state received $4,540,882 from horse racing. This figure represents part of the total comptroller Lacy reported today, since the 1947 spring racing meets fell within that fiscal year, which ended June 30.

MARYLAND RACING COMMISSION OKAYS DATES FOR MILERS

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12 (AP) — The Maryland Racing Commission today set this schedule for Maryland's one-mile track horse racing circuit next year:

Each track is authorized 25 days of racing and the schedule preserves the pattern in effect since the war. Bowie opens and closes eastern racing with separate meetings in the spring and fall, Havre De Grace has split spring meetings, Pimlico has separate spring and fall meetings, and Laurel stages an undivided 25-day program in the fall.

PLAN TO BAN BOWL GAMES IS REJECTED

ROANOKE, Va., Dec. 12 (INS)—The Southern Conference meeting decided today to hold its annual basketball tournament on March 5, 6 and 7 at Duke University, Durham, N. C.

The action came after the conferees rejected an attempt to ban post-season "bowl" football games by member colleges.

Athletic directors of the 16 colleges and universities voted to retain the rule which requires only that teams invited to make post-season appearances obtain approval of the conference.

Two of the conference teams already are scheduled for "bowl" appearances on New Year's Day.

Facing Impossible Odds

There is only one way to take a real lathering or to wade into a real going over and that is to collide with the sovereign commonwealth of Texas.

This is an experience that is worth while. We have just gone through with it. And for some odd reason, we are still breathing. It all came about in attempting to locate the all-star backs of 1947.

Here were just a few from which selections had to be made:

Notre Dame — Lujack. (Almost anyone else.)

Michigan—Chappius and Elliott.

Texas—Layne. Fine passer, rarely used on defense.

Mississippi—Conerly.

Arkansas—Clyde Scott.

Alabama—Harry Gilmer, the best passer in football, next to Baugh and Luckman. "The best all-around football player in America," states Frank Thomas.

Kansas—Ray Evans, runner, passer, blocker, tackler—60-minute man. Five years on top—"The greatest back I've ever seen," writes Clyde McBride, 40-year veteran writer.

Pennsylvania — Skippy Minisi, runner, passer, blocker, tackler, fine offensive and defensive man for five years. "I only wish I could get him," confides Jock Sutherland. "A great all-around star for five years."

Cloud of William and Mary, along with Rip Rowan of Army were rated the best fullbacks of the year.

In the final ranking of the all-stars, neither Walker nor Layne made the top four in our rating over the years, not over just one season. This hasn't been the only year when football was played.

So our favorite state, the commonwealth of Texas, falls across our neck. With a thud. Texas has been a favorite state because, hailing from Tennessee, it was Tennessee that gave Texas its start.

In its darkest days we sent Davey Crockett to the Alamo and Sam Houston to take over the rest of it. At times we shudder to think what would have happened to Louisiana and Texas if Tennessee hadn't been able to produce Andrew Jackson and Sam Houston.

Doak Walker of S.M.U. has two more years to go. He may not have too happy an afternoon against Penn State on New Year's Day but Walker will still be a great football player.

Bobby Layne, another brilliant Texan, will have to look better than Harry Gilmer who can outpass him, outrun him, outtackle him and outkick him. But Layne is with the better ball club. The Sugar Bowl meeting will tell the story.

"Harry Gilmer," Frank Thomas writes me, "is so much the best back in the nation there is no one else even close. Ask the pros, who are trying to get him. So why is Texas kicking? I never lost to a Texas team," Thomas told me once. "I never will. I can always take those Texans."

Red Drew is coaching Alabama this time—not Frank Thomas. Both Drew and Thomas can hardly wait to see Gilmer thrown against Layne as an all-around football player.

Many Arguments On Ahead

There are so many arguments on ahead that few of them can be answered.

In spite of the onslaught that Texas has thrown our way for side-stepping Layne and Walker this list season among the leaders, we still insist that Texas is in the saddle as far as the Bowl games go.

Texas is throwing the University of Texas against Alabama in what should be the best of all the Bowl games. Alabama against Texas—Gilmer against Layne—two of the country's best teams with two of the country's finest passers.

Gilmer is a better all-around football player than Layne is. Or than Doak Walker is. Or than almost any football player you can name. His top weight this season was 157 pounds. Despite this handicap, he proved a brilliant passer and runner, a terrific tackler, able blacker and kicker. Sick when the season started, it took him three weeks to hit his best stride.

While Alabama and Texas will probably be the best of the Bowl games, S.M.U. and Penn State won't be far away. Everyone knows S.M.U is the Texas champion, a nod over Texas. Call it half a nod. But you'd be surprised to know how many Texans think Texas is stronger than S.M.U. You'd be amazed to know how many Texans think T.C.U. was better than S.M.U. at the wind-up. We wouldn't know.

No one knows how good Penn State is Bob Higgins' team hasn't played a strong schedule. But old Bob still thinks he has an outfit that will handle S.M.U., and one that will give Doak Walker the busiest afternoon Doak has ever known.

"We can handle the best runners, the best ball carriers in football," Higgins told me. "I wouldn't be quite so sure about the passing game. We haven't had to face many good passers."

Texas has her chance to win two of the biggest Bowl games of 1947. Texas can do it, but Texas has two tall barricades in the road in Alabama and Penn State. They, also, can play their share of football.

Jimmy Demaret Cops Leadership In Miami Open

Ed Furgol Posts 134, Trails By Two Strokes

By WILBUR JENNINGS

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP)—Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., nervous as a poker player with four aces but rolling out the birdies, shot a six-under-par 64 in the second round of the $10,000 Miami Open Golf tournament today to take a two stroke lead at 132.

Ed Furgol of Detroit pulled into second place with a 68 which brought his total to 34. Another stroke behind at 135 were two other Detroiters, Walter Burkemo, who posted a second round 67, and Sammy Byrd, with a 68. Rating with the Detroiters were Dave Douglas, Wilmington Del., winner of the recent Orlando Open, who carded a four-under-par 66.

Fred Haas, Ja., of New Orleans, leader in the first round, was tied at 137 with two leading amateurs, Frank Stranahan of Toledo, and Gene Dahlbender of Atlanta. Haas fired a two-over-par 72, Stranahan had a 69 and Dahlbender 68. Others at 137 were Ted Kroll, Philmont, Pa., Glenn Teal, Jacksonville, and Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa.

The year's leading money winner and a native of Houston, Texas, Demaret readily admitted that he was "nervous" as he kept his drives down the middle and his iron shots hitting the handkerdchief sized greens.

"I play best when I'm nervous and the tension is mounting," he said.

While the crooning Texan rolled into the lead, defending champion Sammy Snead asserted he "was awful" as he shot a 33-38—71 for a 141 total.

Five players were bunched at 138. They were Bob Hamilton, Evansville, Ind.; Jim Milward, Three Lakes, Wis.; Harry Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn.; Skip Alexander, Lexington, N. C., and Claude Harmon, Palm Beach.

Williams Scores Over Tony Pellone

Latter Takes Savage Beating In Garden

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Ike Williams, sharp-punching lightweight champion from Trenton, N. J., gave Tony Pellone of Greenwich Village a savage beating in a 10-round non-title fight tonight at Madison Square Garden, nearly stopping the rugged welterweight in the closing rounds. The decision of the officials, for a chance, was unanimous. Williams weighed 139¾, Pellone 145¼.

Pellone was a sad sight toward the end of the one-sided fray, bleeding from eye, nose and mouth and sustained only by his fighting heart. Williams, who entered the ring a 55 to 11 favorite, tried to measure his heavier opponent repeatedly in the ninth and tenth rounds but couldn't put him down.

Two of the three officials, Referee Frank Fullam and Judge Joe Agnello, gave Williams all 10 rounds. Judge Harold Barnes thought Pellone deserved two rounds, the first and third, but gave the other eight to the negro champion. The Associated Press score card showed eight rounds for Williams, one for Pellone and one even.

Becker's Goal Gives Altoona Victory Here

Winning Shot In Air At The Final Whistle

Moe Becker's field goal in the final second of play enabled the Altoona (Pa.) Edwards to come from behind and nose out the Cumberland Dukes by the score of 53 to 52 in an All-American Basketball League thriller last night at the State Armory before 400 persons.

The Amvets were leading 52-49 with a minute yet to play when Dom Asmonga stole the ball in mid-court and scored on a dribbled-in shot to put the Pennsylvanians only one point in the rear.

Becker, who played with the Cumberland Collegians in 1941, then came through with the winning basket. His shot, fired from the sidelines was in the air as the final whistle blew, the ball rolled around the rim for a moment and then dropped through the draperies.

The victory gave Altoona a record of one victory and one defeat in the league while the loss was Cumberland's second against one win in the six-club pro circuit.

Last night's game was a hammer-and-tongs battle from start to finish and had the fans on their toes during the rugged closing minutes of play in which the tactics of the players bordered on roughhouse.

The score was tied at 11-11 in the first quarter, 28-28 in the second period, 31-31 in the third period and 43-43 and 49-49 in the last stanza.

Altoona scored the first seven points of the game but the Dukes rallied for 11 points and forged to the fore at the quarter whistle, 17-12. The Dukes led throughout the second half with the exception of the time the score was tied at 28-28 and at intermission the count was 31-30.

The Edwards took over the lead in the third quarter and as the teams entered the final heat the count was 43-38. Bell's goal tied the score at 43-43 and Geatz's basket put the Dukes ahead in the 4th quarter. After Bystura's two-pointer evened the count for the final time at 49-49 Geatz caged a free throw and Overhaus tipped in a goal to give Cumberland a 52-49 edge. Then Osmanga and Becker tossed in the final goals of the game.

Stan Noszka and Jimmy Atkins, speedy negro player, paced the Altoona attack with 15 and 14 points while Bob Pence and George Geatz topped the locals with 15 and 13.

Twelve personal fouls were called on Altoona and nine on the home team.

The Dukes play in Altoona tonight. Lineups:

"Sugar" Is Fit

DETROIT, Dec. 12—(INS)—Welterweight champion "Sugar" Ray Robinson was declared physically fit today for his December 19 title go with Chuck Taylor, but refused to disclose his weight.

Five observers have been speculating that the champion may have difficulty making the welter limit of 147 pounds.

TO FACE DUKES—Leo Mogus, left, 6-fot-4 center, formerly of Youngstown College, the Cleveland Rebels and Toronto Huskies, and Rudy Debnar, right, who starred with the Akron Goodyears after playing at Duquesne University, will be seen in action with the Youngstown Cubs Sunday night at the State Armory when the Ohioans tangle with the Cumberland Dukes in an All-American Pro Basketball League contest. The game will get under way at 9 o'clock.

Youngstown Cubs Will Test Dukes Tomorrow Night

Paul Birch's Passers Pay First Visit Here

Coach Paul Birch's Youngstown (Ohio) Cubs will come to Cumberland tomorrow night to battle it out with the Cumberland Dukes in what should prove to be an interesting game at the State Armory.

Youngstown boasts one of the strongest lineups in the newly formed six-club pro circuit and the fact that Birch, formerly of Duquesne University, the New York Celtics, Fort Wayne Zollners and Pittsburgh Ironmen; Leo Mogus, Youngstown College ace; Rudy Debnar, ex-Duquesne U. and Akron Goodyears' star; and Fred Paine, formerly of Westminster College, are in the visitors' lineup should serve as a good drawing card and attract a large crowd to the armory.

Other players on the Youngstown roster include John Bosak of Farrell, Pa.; Charley Butler, formerly of Notre Dame; John Cramb, Youngstown College; Ben Flossie and Ned Endress, from Akron University; Paul Minner, ex-Westminster College player and Lou Gabriel and George Naples, who starred in high school for Youngstown quints.

All of the Cubs are over six feet tall except Flossie, who is five-feet-eight.

It will be the third game in as many days for the Dukes. The locals played Altoona here last night and play a return game with the Edwards in Mosque Temple, Altoona, tonight.

Bill Hahn and Clifton Van Roby will officiate in the Sunday night contest here. The starting time is 9 o'clock.

Illinois Says N.B.A. Voting Was Biased

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP) — The Illinois State Athletic Commission today described as "a complete farce" a recent poll by the National Boxing Association which showed sentiment slightly in favor of permitting middleweight champion Rocky Graziano's return to the ring.

The Illinois Commission was the first to bar Graziano because of his war record and several other states passed similar resolutions which prompted the NBA to conduct its poll.

"In our opinion, no poll could have been more partial from its inception," the commission declared, "and this commission protested vigorously the manner in which the poll was being made.

"It is our considered opinion that the poll was a complete farce, the result of which certainly does not reflect credit upon the N. B. A., which is supposed to be the controlling influence for good in boxing, instead of a factor in dragging the sport into the gutter. It is discouraging to have the governing body conduct a poll as biased as this one was.

"x x x desertion from the armed forces of one's counthy in time of war cannot be dealt with too heavily—certainly it should not be condoned."

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Football coaches and players are pretty much satisfied with the rules as they are, Lou Little said today after studying approximately 1,000 letters and cards.

Little, coach at Columbia, is chairman of the Football Coaches' Rules Committee and each fall he canvasses his fellow mentors for rules suggestions, ideas or innovations. He compiles the answers and mails the result to the members as a basis for discussions at the annual meeting.

Gus Lesnevich May Get Title Go With Louis

Jersey Joe Walcott Intimates "Brushoff"

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, his left eye still slightly puffed and discolored as a result of last week's bout with Jersey Joe Walcott, appeared before the press today to announce that he will retire from the ring after one more title defense in June.

Seated behind Mike Jacobs' big desk in the 20th Century Sporting Club office, Louis met or fended off a barrage of questions almost as troublesome as the punches Walcott threw. Joe easily retained his crown as wise-cracking champion of the pugilistic trade and managed to bring forth the following bits of information:

(1) That he plans to fight once more, in June, against any opponent the 20th Century Club may select.

(2) That light heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich has as good a chance as Walcott of becoming Louis' opponent for that fight.

(3) That after his retirement, he will engage to some extent in several business enterprises, including a publicity agency with which he has been associated ever since he left the army and the soft drink concern, which bears his name, and which will add beer to its line of products.

(4) That he will leave for England Feb. 19 for a month's visit in connection with the "health and holiday" program and will start training again at French Lick, Ind., immediately after his return.

(5) That he thinks he just had a bad night, due probably to reducing his weight from 215 to 211 pounds in the last two days before the Walcott bout and that he thinks he would beat Walcott in a return engagement. And

(6) That his now-famous remark, "I'm sorry, Joe" to Walcott, merely meant that he was sorry that Jersey Joe and his handlers were so obviously perturbed about the decision. "I didn't think I had won or lost. I just wanted to get out of that ring because I had looked so bad," he further explained.

Louis Has Had Enough

Opening the mass interview, Louis announced: "It will be my last fight in June. After that the next fight I have will be in a bar room. I've had enough; I've been around a long time."

Harry Markson, 20th Century Club publicity man, interjected "with the reservation, of course, that all prima donnas are entitled to six retirements."

Joe just grinned at that, and when a reporter asked: ""Are you pretty well fixed financially?" Louis said: "I'm just on leave of absence from the Ford plant. I can always go back there."

Insisting that it is the promoter's job to make matches, Joe insisted that Lesnevich had at least as good a chance as Walcott of getting the title shot.

"I'm not looking for revenge; I just want one more good fight. I'll be good as ever next time out. I had a bad night against Walcott; I couldn't go get him. That's because I wanted to make 212 pounds; Manny (Trainer Manny Seamon) wanted me to make 214."

When he finally was pinned down on whether he would prefer to fight Walcott or Lesnevich, Louis said: "I think Lesnevich is tougher. I think if Lesnevich had me in the position this boy had me in, he would have knocked me out."

"Brushoff" Is Intimated

Walcott, in New York for the day, expressed disappointment at Louis' statement and intimated the champion probably was giving him the "brushoff."

"I earned the right to fight Louis again," Jersey Joe commented. "I always considered him a great champion and a fine sportsman but now with him talking about meeting Lesnevich instead of me I don't know."

Walcott's handlers stated Jersey Joe would not be willing to engage in a return match for less than 30 per cent of the gate.

The Walcott spokesman said if Louis fought Lesnevich in his one remaining go as a champion then Jersey Joe would meet an unnamed opponent in Philadelphia in the summer and ask the N.B.A. for recognition of the championship.

"It looks as if Louis is anxious to retire as a champion," he added. "He is thinking of the money he can get in various enterprises afterwards. The best way for him to retire as champion is to fight Lesnevich instead of Walcott."

Bettors At Fairgo Contribute $103,847

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 12 —(AP)—Comptroller James J. Lacy announced today state revenues from horse racing during 1947 totaled $5,095,324.

Because of the new law taxing racing, there were no comparable figures available, but Lacy said receipts during the fall meets were above expectations.

Under the law, Baltimore City and the counties receive 50 per cent of the revenues at mile tracks—divided on a population basis—and the state's general fund the rest. One-fourth of the half-mile track receipts go to Baltimore City and the counties, another fourth to the state fair board and the rest to the general fund.

The breakage at the tracks—the odd pennies between one and ten cents not computed in paying off bets—goes half to the state fair board and half to the tracks.

Pimlico bettors made the most generous contribution to the state revenues with a total of $1,234,012. Laurel was second with $1,131,206. Bowie paid 1,054,656; Havre de Grace $1,059,503; Bel Air $153,535; Cumberland $103,847; Hagerstown $99,751; Marlboro $124,002 and Timonium $125,815. Incidental fees brought in $9,173.

According to the law, of this total Baltimore City and the counties will receive $2,396,094, the fair board $345,978 and the general fund $2,453,251. A $72,280 refund for 1946 over payment at Pimlico was paid by the state.

Under the legislation the major tracks now pay a $1,000 a day license fee and 4 per cent on total betting. The smaller — half - mile — tracks pay $50 a day license fee to the county treasurer in the county in which the race is held, 1 per cent on the first $500,000 bet, 2 per cent on the next $500,000 and 4 per cent on wagers over $1,000,000.

During the last fiscal year the state received $4,540,882 from horse racing. This figure represents part of the total comptroller Lacy reported today, since the 1947 spring racing meets fell within that fiscal year, which ended June 30.

MARYLAND RACING COMMISSION OKAYS DATES FOR MILERS

Bowie — March 31 through April 13; Havre De Grace—April 14 through May 1; Pimlico — May 3 through 15; Havre De Grace — May 17 through 27. Laurel—Sept. 30 through Oct. 28; Pimlico—Oct. 29 through Nov. 12; Bowie—Nov. 13 through 27.

Each track is authorized 25 days of racing and the schedule preserves the pattern in effect since the war. Bowie opens and closes eastern racing with separate meetings in the spring and fall, Havre De Grace has split spring meetings, Pimlico has separate spring and fall meetings, and Laurel stages an undivided 25-day program in the fall.

PLAN TO BAN BOWL GAMES IS REJECTED

ROANOKE, Va., Dec. 12 (INS)—The Southern Conference meeting decided today to hold its annual basketball tournament on March 5, 6 and 7 at Duke University, Durham, N. C.

The action came after the conferees rejected an attempt to ban post-season "bowl" football games by member colleges.

Athletic directors of the 16 colleges and universities voted to retain the rule which requires only that teams invited to make post-season appearances obtain approval of the conference.

Two of the conference teams already are scheduled for "bowl" appearances on New Year's Day.

Facing Impossible Odds

There is only one way to take a real lathering or to wade into a real going over and that is to collide with the sovereign commonwealth of Texas.

This is an experience that is worth while. We have just gone through with it. And for some odd reason, we are still breathing. It all came about in attempting to locate the all-star backs of 1947.

Here were just a few from which selections had to be made:

Notre Dame — Lujack. (Almost anyone else.)

Michigan—Chappius and Elliott.

Mississippi—Conerly.

Arkansas—Clyde Scott.

Alabama—Harry Gilmer, the best passer in football, next to Baugh and Luckman. "The best all-around football player in America," states Frank Thomas.

Kansas—Ray Evans, runner, passer, blocker, tackler—60-minute man. Five years on top—"The greatest back I've ever seen," writes Clyde McBride, 40-year veteran writer.

Pennsylvania — Skippy Minisi, runner, passer, blocker, tackler, fine offensive and defensive man for five years. "I only wish I could get him," confides Jock Sutherland. "A great all-around star for five years."

Cloud of William and Mary, along with Rip Rowan of Army were rated the best fullbacks of the year.

In the final ranking of the all-stars, neither Walker nor Layne made the top four in our rating over the years, not over just one season. This hasn't been the only year when football was played.

So our favorite state, the commonwealth of Texas, falls across our neck. With a thud. Texas has been a favorite state because, hailing from Tennessee, it was Tennessee that gave Texas its start.

In its darkest days we sent Davey Crockett to the Alamo and Sam Houston to take over the rest of it. At times we shudder to think what would have happened to Louisiana and Texas if Tennessee hadn't been able to produce Andrew Jackson and Sam Houston.

Doak Walker of S.M.U. has two more years to go. He may not have too happy an afternoon against Penn State on New Year's Day but Walker will still be a great football player.

Bobby Layne, another brilliant Texan, will have to look better than Harry Gilmer who can outpass him, outrun him, outtackle him and outkick him. But Layne is with the better ball club. The Sugar Bowl meeting will tell the story.

"Harry Gilmer," Frank Thomas writes me, "is so much the best back in the nation there is no one else even close. Ask the pros, who are trying to get him. So why is Texas kicking? I never lost to a Texas team," Thomas told me once. "I never will. I can always take those Texans."

Red Drew is coaching Alabama this time—not Frank Thomas. Both Drew and Thomas can hardly wait to see Gilmer thrown against Layne as an all-around football player.

Many Arguments On Ahead

There are so many arguments on ahead that few of them can be answered.

In spite of the onslaught that Texas has thrown our way for side-stepping Layne and Walker this list season among the leaders, we still insist that Texas is in the saddle as far as the Bowl games go.

Texas is throwing the University of Texas against Alabama in what should be the best of all the Bowl games. Alabama against Texas—Gilmer against Layne—two of the country's best teams with two of the country's finest passers.

Gilmer is a better all-around football player than Layne is. Or than Doak Walker is. Or than almost any football player you can name. His top weight this season was 157 pounds. Despite this handicap, he proved a brilliant passer and runner, a terrific tackler, able blacker and kicker. Sick when the season started, it took him three weeks to hit his best stride.

While Alabama and Texas will probably be the best of the Bowl games, S.M.U. and Penn State won't be far away. Everyone knows S.M.U is the Texas champion, a nod over Texas. Call it half a nod. But you'd be surprised to know how many Texans think Texas is stronger than S.M.U. You'd be amazed to know how many Texans think T.C.U. was better than S.M.U. at the wind-up. We wouldn't know.

No one knows how good Penn State is Bob Higgins' team hasn't played a strong schedule. But old Bob still thinks he has an outfit that will handle S.M.U., and one that will give Doak Walker the busiest afternoon Doak has ever known.

"We can handle the best runners, the best ball carriers in football," Higgins told me. "I wouldn't be quite so sure about the passing game. We haven't had to face many good passers."

Texas has her chance to win two of the biggest Bowl games of 1947. Texas can do it, but Texas has two tall barricades in the road in Alabama and Penn State. They, also, can play their share of football.

POTOMAC STATE GRID TEAM IS RECOGNIZED AS CONFERENCE CHAMP

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 12 (AP)—Potomac State College of Keyser, today was declared the 1947 West Virginia Intercollegiate Conference football champions at a meeting of the conference here.

West Virginia Tech was awarded the 1947 baseball championship.

Potomac State won six games, tied one and received a forefeit when a Glenville State player was declared ineligible by the conference. West Liberty contested the championship claim of Potomac State but with three victories and one tie in the conference, officials said, it failed to get enough percentage points to win.

Jimmy Demaret Cops Leadership In Miami Open

By WILBUR JENNINGS

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP)—Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., nervous as a poker player with four aces but rolling out the birdies, shot a six-under-par 64 in the second round of the $10,000 Miami Open Golf tournament today to take a two stroke lead at 132.

Ed Furgol of Detroit pulled into second place with a 68 which brought his total to 34. Another stroke behind at 135 were two other Detroiters, Walter Burkemo, who posted a second round 67, and Sammy Byrd, with a 68. Rating with the Detroiters were Dave Douglas, Wilmington Del., winner of the recent Orlando Open, who carded a four-under-par 66.

Fred Haas, Ja., of New Orleans, leader in the first round, was tied at 137 with two leading amateurs, Frank Stranahan of Toledo, and Gene Dahlbender of Atlanta. Haas fired a two-over-par 72, Stranahan had a 69 and Dahlbender 68. Others at 137 were Ted Kroll, Philmont, Pa., Glenn Teal, Jacksonville, and Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa.

The year's leading money winner and a native of Houston, Texas, Demaret readily admitted that he was "nervous" as he kept his drives down the middle and his iron shots hitting the handkerdchief sized greens.

"I play best when I'm nervous and the tension is mounting," he said.

While the crooning Texan rolled into the lead, defending champion Sammy Snead asserted he "was awful" as he shot a 33-38—71 for a 141 total.

Five players were bunched at 138. They were Bob Hamilton, Evansville, Ind.; Jim Milward, Three Lakes, Wis.; Harry Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn.; Skip Alexander, Lexington, N. C., and Claude Harmon, Palm Beach.

Four players accounted for 54 of the 60 points made by the Catamounts. Kenny Sims racked up 18, Neil Gutshall collected 17, Robert "Babe" Johnson of Lonaconing helped himself to 10 and Jim Eaton made nine.

Williams Scores Over Tony Pellone

Latter Takes Savage Beating In Garden

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Ike Williams, sharp-punching lightweight champion from Trenton, N. J., gave Tony Pellone of Greenwich Village a savage beating in a 10-round non-title fight tonight at Madison Square Garden, nearly stopping the rugged welterweight in the closing rounds. The decision of the officials, for a chance, was unanimous. Williams weighed 139½, Pellone 145¼.

Pellone was a sad sight toward the end of the one-sided fray, bleeding from eye, nose and mouth and sustained only by his fighting heart. Williams, who entered the ring a 55 to 11 favorite, tried to measure his heavier opponent repeatedly in the ninth and tenth rounds but couldn't put him down.

Two of the three officials, Referee Frank Fullam and Judge Joe Agnello, gave Williams all 10 rounds. Judge Harold Barnes thought Pellone deserved two rounds, the first and third, but gave the other eight to the negro champion. The Associated Press score card showed eight rounds for Williams, one for Pellone and one even.

Three National League Linemen Repeat On 1947 AP All-Pro Team

Sanders, Yankees' Ace, Is Backfield Holdover

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 — Three players from the National Football League, all linemen, repeated on The Associated Press 1947 All-Pro team announced today.

They are Tackle Al Wistert, 26, of the Philadelphia Eagles, Guard Riley Matheson, 31, of the Los Angeles Rams and Center Clyde (Bulldog) Turner, 28, of the Chicago Bears.

The only player to repeat from the All-America Conference is Orban (Speck) Sanders, 27, brilliant back with the New York Yankees.

The National League placed six players on the first team, the Conference five. Other National Leaguers on the team are freshman Tackle Dick Huffman of the Los Angeles Rams and Backs Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears and Steve Van Buren of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Besides Sanders the four other Conference players, selected after checking reports from Associated Press sports writers in 14 cities are Back Otto Graham and End Mac Speedie of the Cleveland Browns, End Bruce Alford of the Yankees and Guard Bruno Banducci of the San Francisco 49ers.

Players From Six Teams

Although there are 18 teams playing in the two professional leagues, the first team consisted of players from six teams. The second team, almost as powerful as the first eleven, is made up of men from nine different pro clubs. In all 11 clubs are represented on the first two teams. Six Congerence stars and five from the National League are on the second team.

Two of the first team players are former All-America men. They are Graham, Northwestern' All-America back of 1943, and Huffman who made the 1946 All-America as a Tennessee tackle. Huffman is 22 and the youngest player on the All-Pro.

Four members of the first team performed for Texas schools during their undergraduate playing days. They are Sanders from the University of Texas, Alford from Texas Christian University, Turner from Hardin-Simmons University and Matheson who played for the Texas College of Mines.

The All-Pro backfield consists of a powerful array with Graham and Luckman as the two outstanding passers and Sanders and Van Buren as hard runners.

The second team backfield of Baugh, Johnny Clement of Pittsburgh, Frankie Albert of San Francisco and Marion Motley of Cleveland rates close to the first team. Clement was a triple threat star for the Steelers, Albert proved a master in the T formation for the 49ers and Motley was Cleveland's hard-hitting fullback. Coach Paul Brown of the Browns believes Motley is the best fullback in the Conference. In the National League, Coach Jock Sutherland felt that Steve Lach of his Steelers would fit into any combination at fullback.

Line Averages 214

The first team line is big and fast and comprises men who played important roles in the success of their respective teams. The line averages 214 pounds.

Turner, center for the Bears, made the All-Pro for the fifth time while Wistert, Eagle tackle, and Riley Matheson, Ram guard, both were chosen for the fourth season in succession.

LaWande Fisher Becomes Bride Of Edgar Kight

Vows Exchanged In Frostburg

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG — The marriage of Miss LaWanda Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fisher, 239 Welsh Hill, this city, and Edgar Kight, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kight, Centerville, Pa., was solemnized yesterday at 1 p. m., by Elder Paul Palmer, of the Mormon Church. The ceremony was performed in Welsh Baptist Memorial Church as a courtesy to the Mormon Church which has no church structure in Frostburg. A large company of friends and relatives were present.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was attired in a long ivory wedding gown and carried a white prayer book and an orchid bouquet. The matron of honor, Mrs. Lavinia Kight, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, wore a white floor length dress and carried a yellow prayer book and a bouquet of orchids. The traditional wedding marches were played by Mrs. Judith Polling, organist.

Following the marriage ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home from 2 to 4 o'clock. The couple left later in the evening for a honeymoon trip to Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia. They will reside in their new home, Centerville, Pa.

The bride is a graduate of Beall High School with the class of 1944. Her husband is a graduate of the Bedford, Pa., High School. Both are employed at the Celanese plant.

The wife, according to her statements, was previously married and is the mother of a five-year-old son, who is staying with her parents in West Virginia. Police quoted her as saying her first husband, from whom she is divorced, is serving time in "a penitentiary" after being convicted of robbery.

Wife Defends Mate

Authorities said Mrs. Welsh had admittedly worked in houses of prostitution in Texas, a few years ago, but yesterday was emphatic in denying that her husband had any previous records with police.

Welsh, jail attendants said, requested a detective novel yesterday and spent most of the day, when not being questioned, reading it. An FBI agent also questioned the pair yesterday morning and expressed interest in the blood stained black-jack.

The prisoners told police they went to Hagerstown to purchase the equipment because they had learned that it was not necessary to have a permit to buy guns there.

Two Cumberland News reporters were present in police station when Welsh, handcuffed and closely guarded, was brought into Police Headquarters at 1:40 a. m. yesterday. Police did not begin questioning the pair until 3 a. m. yesterday after the paraphernalia was listed and a routine check made of the prisoners' activities in the city.

Lt. Detective Edwin R. Llya and Detective Powell said the two will definitely be held on a grand larceny charge in connection with the theft of the coat, which was recovered, but said charges will not be preferred until a complete check of the Eastern states has been completed to determine if they are also wanted in other sections besides Hagerstown and Cumberland.

Lisanti Arraigned On Non-Support Charge

Anthony W. Lisanti, 34, who is employed in the junk business here, was arrested yesterday at his parents' home, 126 West Third Street, on a charge of wilfully deserting and failing to support his two young children, according to Deputy United States Marshal Howard P. Loughrie, who made the arrest.

Following his arraignment before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett yesterday afternoon, Lisanti was released under $1,000 bond for action of the District of Columbia federal court.

Loughrie said the accused man's two children, Patricia Ann, 6, and Donald William, 5, are living in Washington, D. C., with their mother.

Prior to coming to Cumberland, Lisanti was a shipyard worker in Washington and in the State of Washington, Loughrie said.

Corriganville Man Remains Unconscious

Roland Uplinger, Corriganville, remained in an unconscious condition last night at Timmins Hospital, Bedford, where he was admitted Sunday following an accident in which the driver, Leslie Bohrer, this city, was also slightly injured.

The wife, according to her statements, was previously married and is the mother of a five-year-old son, who is staying with her parents in West Virginia. Police quoted her as saying her first husband, from whom she is divorced, is serving time in "a penitentiary" after being convicted of robbery.

Wife Defends Mate

Authorities said Mrs. Welsh had admittedly worked in houses of prostitution in Texas, a few years ago, but yesterday was emphatic in denying that her husband had any previous records with police.

Welsh, jail attendants said, requested a detective novel yesterday and spent most of the day, when not being questioned, reading it. An FBI agent also questioned the pair yesterday morning and expressed interest in the blood stained black-jack.

The prisoners told police they went to Hagerstown to purchase the equipment because they had learned that it was not necessary to have a permit to buy guns there.

Two Cumberland News reporters were present in police station when Welsh, handcuffed and closely guarded, was brought into Police Headquarters at 1:40 a. m. yesterday. Police did not begin questioning the pair until 3 a. m. yesterday after the paraphernalia was listed and a routine check made of the prisoners' activities in the city.

Lt. Detective Edwin R. Llya and Detective Powell said the two will definitely be held on a grand larceny charge in connection with the theft of the coat, which was recovered, but said charges will not be preferred until a complete check of the Eastern states has been completed to determine if they are also wanted in other sections besides Hagerstown and Cumberland.

The association is made up of veterans of World Wars I and II, who served with the 29th division.

The newly elected officers will be installed at the next regular meeting, January 8, at the State Armory. Matlick said last night plans will be made for a social hour after the meeting.

Lisanti Arraigned On Non-Support Charge

Anthony W. Lisanti, 34, who is employed in the junk business here, was arrested yesterday at his parents' home, 126 West Third Street, on a charge of wilfully deserting and failing to support his two young children, according to Deputy United States Marshal Howard P. Loughrie, who made the arrest.

Following his arraignment before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett yesterday afternoon, Lisanti was released under $1,000 bond for action of the District of Columbia federal court.

Loughrie said the accused man's two children, Patricia Ann, 6, and Donald William, 5, are living in Washington, D. C., with their mother.

Prior to coming to Cumberland, Lisanti was a shipyard worker in Washington and in the State of Washington, Loughrie said.

Corriganville Man Remains Unconscious

Roland Uplinger, Corriganville, remained in an unconscious condition last night at Timmins Hospital, Bedford, where he was admitted Sunday following an accident in which the driver, Leslie Bohrer, this city, was also slightly injured.

Police said Uplinger suffered a fractured skull, when the car in which the two men were riding, careened from Route 220, 11 miles south of Bedford and rolled over in a field.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Her Boy Friend Is Going Away; Should She "Date" Others?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 15 years old and have been going steady with a sailor, 18, for quite awhile. My mother and father like him better than any fellow I have ever gon out with, and so do I and all my friends. But he will be leaving for about a year and six months. He has asked me to wait for him and I told him I would, but anyone, as I think he is worth waiting for.

he said he didn't mind if I went out with other fellows once in a while.

My problem is, should I tell any fellows I may in the future go out with that I am someone else's girl? Or should I just not say anything about him at all? I would be perfectly satisfied not to go out with

"PEARL"

Dear "Pearl:" If your sailor is going to be away as long as a year and a half. I don't think it would be fair to yourself, at 15, to cheat yourself out of all the good times you ought to be having at your age. I don't think it is necessary, however, for you to make a point of telling any boys you may go out with that you have a boy friend who is away, but, if you like, you can casually bring him into the conversation now and then. Since you and the sailor have an understanding about your going out while he is gone, there is no reason for you to make your dates uncomfortable by bluntly making it clear to them that you are far more interested in somebody else. That would not even be polite.

Just go along naturally and have fun with your other friends, and I am sure you will find everything will come out all right.

Parents Are Right

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 14 years old and very fond of a girl who lives in another town, but my folks don't want me to write or phone her. They say I am too young to have a girl friend.

I don't think it would hurt to correspond with her, as I am really fond of her. Do you think my parents are right?

"TOM"

The answer to your question is "yes," and "no."

I think your parents are right in saying that you are too young to have one steady girl, but I don't see why they should not be willing for you to write to this girl or call her up ooccasionally,, as long as you don't carry either of these to extremes.

My suggestion is that you let your parents know that you have lots of friends and show them that you have by going around with them and phoning or writing them, too. I am sure all they are concerned about is that you don't get yourself into too serious a state of mind about any one girl, while if they think she is just one among many, they will have no objections to your keeping in touch with her.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Her Boy Friend Is Going Away; Should She "Date" Others?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 15 years old and have been going steady with a sailor, 18, for quite awhile. My mother and father like him better than any fellow I have ever gon out with, and so do I and all my friends. But he will be leaving for about a year and six months. He has asked me to wait for him and I told him I would, but anyone, as I think he is worth waiting for.

he said he didn't mind if I went out with other fellows once in a while.

My problem is, should I tell any fellows I may in the future go out with that I am someone else's girl? Or should I just not say anything about him at all? I would be perfectly satisfied not to go out with

"PEARL"

Dear "Pearl:" If your sailor is going to be away as long as a year and a half. I don't think it would be fair to yourself, at 15, to cheat yourself out of all the good times you ought to be having at your age. I don't think it is necessary, however, for you to make a point of telling any boys you may go out with that you have a boy friend who is away, but, if you like, you can casually bring him into the conversation now and then. Since you and the sailor have an understanding about your going out while he is gone, there is no reason for you to make your dates uncomfortable by bluntly making it clear to them that you are far more interested in somebody else. That would not even be polite.

Just go along naturally and have fun with your other friends, and I am sure you will find everything will come out all right.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 14 years old and very fond of a girl who lives in another town, but my folks don't want me to write or phone her. They say I am too young to have a girl friend.

I don't think it would hurt to correspond with her, as I am really fond of her. Do you think my parents are right?

"TOM"

The answer to your question is "yes," and "no."

I think your parents are right in saying that you are too young to have one steady girl, but I don't see why they should not be willing for you to write to this girl or call her up ooccasionally,, as long as you don't carry either of these to extremes.

My suggestion is that you let your parents know that you have lots of friends and show them that you have by going around with them and phoning or writing them, too. I am sure all they are concerned about is that you don't get yourself into too serious a state of mind about any one girl, while if they think she is just one among many, they will have no objections to your keeping in touch with her.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—Richard Buckley was in my office this morning barking like a dog, reciting Shakespeare and singing extemporaneously about the Iron Curtain, and after I had ushered him out politely I couldn't help but reflect that Manhattan surely is the happy hunting ground of characters. Maurice Dreicer, who awards butter knives to owners of restaurants whose steaks he likes; Ken McSarin, who eats 36 omelets at one sitting—you name it, we got it. I often wonder how Jim Moran, the California character who sold iceboxes to Eskimos and sat on an ostrich egg for several days, has resisted the siren song of New York. This is the place for Moran.

Richard Buckley

Today was my first encounter with Buckley, but I saw immediately that he belonged. He had on a purple shirt, a blue-and-yellow paisley bow-tie, a fawn-colored velvet fedora and a thin gray mustache.

These riotous garments likely had come from the Clyde Shop, a Madison avenue establishment specializing in the emancipation of the American male from the conservative haberdashery chains that bind him, but as one gentleman to another I couldn't ask Buckley about his tailor. Veddy gauche, you know.

Buckley did, however, comment that he was not wearing his favorite quick change; that one included peach-colored beret, lavender bow tie on flaming red shirt, hunting jacket to match and riding crop. "I want," he added loftily, "to put a little color into the drab, mundane existence of the cave dwellers."

BUCKLEY IS, ROUGHLY, AN ACTOR. He appears wherever the dull green dollar bill draws him—night clubs, radio, recording studios and so on—but at the moment is devoting his time to classes in "rhythm thought."

He explained very carefully what rhythm thought is, bringing in dramatic reference to "the green edge of selfishness," but I guess I am just a poor slob because I had no idea what he was talking about. It really didn't matter. He just talked on and I listened and it was pleasant enough. I felt like the little barefoot farmer's daughter sitting spellbound while the traveling salesman spoke in three-syllable words.

Like John Carradine, Buckley devotes a great deal of his time to The Gesture. He can enter a telephone booth like Shakespeare answering the call for "Author, author!" He sits in a restaurant and tenderly asks a waitress, "Your Ladyship—would you be so kind as to get me a cup of coffee?"

When he is acting, Buckley will address a stagehand as "Sire" and tell him that "dash it all, you look like a million dollars."

"It pulls the hump right out of their backs," Richard says. "It's like lighting a lamp wherever you go." He has had seven wives, he says, and they all were wonderful. "I'd love to have gotten to know them better," he adds.

BARKING LIKE A DOG is one of his pet pastimes. He has a 195-pound harlequin Dane in California, but when he enters a restaurant here in New York it is just as if the missing monster is with him. He barks—loudly and commandingly. Then: "Get down, blast you! Down, I say! This is the last time I bring you anywhere." And so on.

Why does Mr. Buckley wallow around in whimsy thusly? "It's a big, bright light in people's stereotyped grind," he says. "They love to 'see' the invisible dog—and the stiffest-laced citizen will bring him imaginary bones."

Years ago, in Kansas City, Buckley was a master of ceremonies at a walkathon, but that career ended rather abruptly when, to liven things up, he accepted his partner's dare and tossed two ripe eggs at the bald head of a spectator.

Chicago also has tender memories of our boy. He had a friend working in a mortuary, so one day they commandeered a coffin—"a beautiful, silk-lined job"—and an old highboy hearse. Buckley, dressed in tails, was loaded into the open casket and then, with two friends sitting at his side strumming guitars, rode in cortege style all the way along the Outer Drive to Chicago's South Side, where Buckley was appearing at a night club called the Suzy Q.

At the joint, four waiters brought the coffin in, stacked it up on the floor, slowly turned it around—and Buckley stepped out, smiling. "It was the kind of entrance I live for," Mr. Buckley told me, reminiscing wistfully. We barked "Arf, arf!" at each other once and then he was gone.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my wife, Verna May Stevenson, who departed this life one year ago, December 8, 1946.

In a lonely graveyard
Not so far away,
A dear one lies there sleeping,
There beneath the cold, cold clay.

I often stand beside your grave
And wish your face to see;
You were so sweet, so pure, and kind,
You meant the world to me.

I miss your face, your gentle smile,
I miss your tender care,
I miss your dear sweet voice,
I miss you, darling, everywhere.

A year has passed since you have gone,
And oh, the time has been so long;
But I hope and pray, that God, some day,
Will let us meet again.

Sadly missed by her husband, GEORGE E. STEVENSON.

"MOTHER SLEEPS"
Mother sleeps, at last in peace,
A smile upon her face,
Her love for us will never cease,
She's in a better place.
Her toil worn hands, at last at rest,
Her soul is in God's care,
For us she always did her best.
We put the silver in her hair.
Mother sleeps, but not alone
She sleeps with Angels near,
Our sins to her, we now atone,
And keep her memory dear.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends, neighbors and relatives for their kindness and sympathy following the death of our beloved mother and grandmother, Mrs. Annie V. Swartley. We especially thank Rev. Brake of St. John's Lutheran Church, and those who sent floral tributes and donated cars for the funeral service.

CHILDREN & GRANDCHILDREN.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors who were so kind to us in our sorrow, the death of Mrs. Mary (Patterson) Martin. We especially wish to thank Rev. George E. Baughman and those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their automobiles.

John J. Martin and Daughter, The Patterson Family.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my wife, Verna May Stevenson, who departed this life one year ago, December 8, 1946.

In a lonely graveyard
Not so far away,
A dear one lies there sleeping,
There beneath the cold, cold clay.

I often stand beside your grave
And wish your face to see;
You were so sweet, so pure, and kind,
You meant the world to me.

I miss your face, your gentle smile,
I miss your tender care,
I miss your dear sweet voice,
I miss you, darling, everywhere.

A year has passed since you have gone,
And oh, the time has been so long;
But I hope and pray, that God,
some day,
Will let us meet again.

Sadly missed by her husband, GEORGE H. STEVENSON.

"MOTHER SLEEPS"
Mother sleeps, at last in peace,
A smile upon her face,
Her love for us will never cease,
She's in a better place.
Her toil worn hands, at last at rest,
Her soul is in God's care,
For us she always did her best.
We put the silver in her hair,
Mother sleeps, but not alone
She sleeps with Angels near,
Our sins to her, we now atone,
And keep her memory dear.

Sadly missed by HUSBAND, SONS and DAUGHTERS.

Rev. Henry Fout Dies Of Injuries

By MYRTLE PARK

Word has been received here that Rev. Henry Harness Fout, 86, Bishop Emeritus of the Evangelical United Brethren church died in General Hospital, Indianapolis, Ind., Thursday night of injuries suffered Wednesday when he walked against the side of a moving automobile at 56th Street and College Avenue, Indianapolis.

Bishop Fout, who lived at 5850 Carrollton Avenue, Indianapolis, had served as a minister there more than 60 years until his retirement seven years ago. Even after retirement he continued his activities, writing and doing evangelistic work.

He was born at Maysville, Grant County, W. Va. October 18, 1861 the son of Henry and Susan Catherine Fout and he was graduated from Shenandoah Collegiate Institute at Dayton, Virginia in 1885, and from Bonebrake Theological Seminary, Dayton, Ohio in 1890. On December 11, 1900 he married Miss Adah C. Pierson.

Bishop Fout began preaching at Edinburg, Va. in 1885 and was ordained in the United Brethren ministry in 1890 and he was pastor of the Oak Street Church, Dayton, Ohio from 1891 to 1899, and then served as conference superintendent from 1899 to 1901. He served as editor of Sunday school literature from 1901 until 1913 and became a bishop May 4, 1913. He was head of the Northwest District of the United Brethren church 26 years before the merger of that group with the Evangelical church.

A memorial plaque in Bishop Fout's honor was dedicated two months ago at the Park Avenue Evangelical United Brethren church, of which he had been a member 32 years.

During all of Bishop's Fout's service as a bishop he maintained his episcopal residence in Indianapolis, although the Northwest District included seven conferences in Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan.

He is the last surviving member of his family, his mother, Mrs. Otis O. Fout, Maysville, having died several years ago. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. John Lewis, both of Indianapolis.

Bishop and Mrs. Fout visited in Grant County annually for a number of years until recently. His family were outstanding citizens in this community.

Mrs. C. D. Sions is a patient in the hospital at Philippi for an operation.

Oliver Newhouse has returned from Baltimore where he has been employed.

Rev. Henry Fout Dies Of Injuries

By MYRTLE PARK

Word has been received here that Rev. Henry Harness Fout, 86, Bishop Emeritus of the Evangelical United Brethren church died in General Hospital, Indianapolis, Ind., Thursday night of injuries suffered Wednesday when he walked against the side of a moving automobile at 58th Street and College Avenue, Indianapolis.

Bishop Fout, who lived at 5850 Carrollton Avenue, Indianapolis, had served as a minister there more than 60 years until his retirement seven years ago. Even after retirement he continued his activities, writing and doing evangelistic work.

He was born at Maysville, Grant County, W. Va. October 18, 1861 the son of Henry and Susan Catherine Fout and he was graduated from Shenandoah Collegiate Institute at Dayton, Virginia in 1885, and from Bonebrake Theological Seminary, Dayton, Ohio in 1890. On December 11, 1900 he married Miss Adah C. Pierson.

Bishop Fout began preaching at Edinburg, Va. in 1885 and was ordained in the United Brethren ministry in 1890 and he was pastor of the Oak Street Church, Dayton, Ohio from 1891 to 1899, and then served as conference superintendent from 1899 to 1901. He served as editor of Sunday school literature from 1901 until 1913 and became a bishop May 4, 1913. He was head of the Northwest District of the United Brethren church 26 years before the merger of that group with the Evangelical church.

A memorial plaque in Bishop Fout's honor was dedicated two months ago at the Park Avenue Evangelical United Brethren church, of which he had been a member 32 years.

During all of Bishop's Fout's service as a bishop he maintained his episcopal residence in Indianapolis, although the Northwest District included seven conferences in Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan.

He is the last surviving member of his family, his mother, Mrs. Otis O. Fout, Maysville, having died several years ago. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. John Lewis, both of Indianapolis.

Bishop and Mrs. Fout visited in Grant County annually for a number of years until recently. His family were outstanding citizens in this community.

Wife, Mate Who Planned 'Crime Career' Held Here

Police Hold Pair On Theft Charges

A 26-year-old paint salesman and his 24-year-old wife for whom he said he planned a "fantastic career of crime" were being held in the City Jail here last night on charges of stealing a fur coat in a local cocktail lounge.

Police said the pair, identified as Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Charles Welsh, most recently from Union, N. J., were apprehended yesterday morning and the husband explained his possession of "one of the most complete assortment of criminal tools ever seen" by saying that 30-days ago he planned to turn "tough guy" to please his wife whom he says he "loves deeply."

Mrs. Welsh, who is docketed under the name of Ruth Roma Welsh, Chicago, Ill., was arrested on Baltimore Street yesterday at 12:15 a. m. after officer C. W. Thompson recognized her as the woman who reportedly stole a fur coat valued at $150 from the Alibi Cocktail Lounge, Baltimore and Mechanic Street, Monday night.

The woman's arrest, police said, immediately led to the apprehension of her husband, who was staying at the Ideal Cabins, Long Hill, where he and his wife moved Tuesday from the Olympia Hotel, after he discovered she had stolen the coat.

A search of the cabin, according to police, resulted in their finding an "unbelieveable" assortment of paraphenalia, which Welsh, said was purchased in Hagerstown after they planned to embark on a career of crime, which his wife "believed would be both profitable and exciting."

Police said Welsh had the same explanation for all of the items found which they listed as two .32 caliber automatic revolvers, two "vicious looking" toy pistols, a special police badge, one pair of toy handcuffs, two blackjacks, one stained with blood; a knife, two false wigs and a mustache, a set of New Jersey license plates, which Welsh admitted he stole, police said two hypodermic syringes along with a package of unidentified white powder, nine rings, eight bracelets, medical supplies and numerous papers.

Welsh, who police said was "intelligent," asserted the guns were purchased in Hagerstown for future use in "not too definitely planned holdups." The hypodermic syringes, Welsh told police were to be used to dope possible victims, and that the license plates were for use, "if and when they became hot" but were never put on the car, which he told police he purchased with his own money "before he got such a crazy idea."

Planned Disguises

A pair of rubber gloves was purchased to be sure that no finger prints would be left when they "pulled a job." The wigs and mustaches would disguise them when they were "working," police said Welsh told them.

Despite Welsh's incredible story of "detective story plans for a "career of crime," Maryland State and Cumberland City police were checking last night with all police departments throughout the East as well as the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to determine if the pair is wanted in connection with other crimes.

Detective Ernest M. Powell, who questioned both persons at headquarters yesterday, after Trooper William McElfish apprehended the husband, said the wife, clad in "slacks" told a story very similar to that related by her husband of "about a year and a half."

Particular attention was being paid by police to the blood stained blackjack, which Welsh said was purchased in Hagerstown at a pawn shop, but never used by either he or his wife.

The pair, according to police, came here from New York, where they had gone from Hagerstown, and were engaged in selling "cheap" costume jewelry, which they declared was purchased in a New York department store. Welsh, according to his statements, purchased the jewelry "cheap" and was selling it to gullible persons.

Throughout the questioning, police said, the husband, who declared he and his wife had recently purchased a home in Union, N. J., admitted that his plans sounded childish, and declared he was happy that they were arrested before the "crime career" got started.

The pair also confessed to stealing a coin-slot radio, two blankets, and a set of pillow cases from the Dagmar Hotel, Hagerstown, where they stayed while there.

Police Solve Two Of Three Thefts At Central YMCA

Continue Search For $114 Stolen

Two of three thefts committed at Central Y.M.C.A. were solved last night by City Police who are continuing investigation of the third in an effort to recover a wallet containing $114, stolen from Harry P. Parker Wednesday.

Detective Thomas J. See said he identified two local youths who stole a pocketbook belonging to Miss Ann Griffith, 808 Memorial Avenue, containing $32.85 and recovered $13 of the money.

The youths were summoned to police headquarters last night along with their parents and released only after promise of restitution was made, the detective said. He explained the youths divided the money and one purchased a second-hand bicycle with his share.

Five other youths from Cumberland also admitted last night that they had broken into the Y.M.C.A. cafeteria three times in recent weeks taking milk, food and silverware. Detective See said they also promised to make restitution.

The third theft, according to See, occurred Wednesday afternoon, but was not reported until Thursday by Parker, who told police he purchased a pencil at the "Y" and shortly after that missed his wallet. He said he observed three youths near him shortly before he missed the wallet containing $114.

Miss Griffith told police that her purse was taken from a table where she placed it while wrapping Christmas packages at the Y. The purse, with identification papers intact, was found by police stuffed in a sewer on Bellevue Street yesterday.

All of the youths were questioned last night and released after their parents had been informed of their actions, police said.

The entrances into the cafeteria have occurred on three occasions, according to police, and the five youths questioned about them admitted they had entered through a window. Police said all of the youths did not participate in the three entrances.

Those re-elected were Chief Phillips, Page, Dickens, Tierney Snyder, Gillum and Hamilton.

Holiday events being planned by the organization include a semi-formal dance next Friday, December 19, at 8 p. m., and a children's Christmas party on Monday, December 22, from 6 until 8 p. m., including movies, games and refreshments. Both events will be held at Circle Inn.

A discussion of the possibility of purchasing a new fire truck will be continued at next Friday's meeting. The new fire hall being constructed in Bowling Green is under roof and completion of the work is expected after the first of the year.

Holdup Suspect Released On Bond

Charles Kirby, 21, Mt. Savage, one of two men committed to Allegany County Jail Thursday in default of $1,000 in connection with the robbery of between $375 and $400 from a local truck driver, was released yesterday on bond.

Authorities said Kirby's companion, Lemuel M. Joyner, 21, also Mt. Savage, who was committed in default of the same amount of bond was still being held.

Kirby's bond was posted by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Kirby, in Trial Magistrates Court before Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., who ordered the two men held after they signed confessions admitting they robbed Victor Lepley as he parked his truck at a North Mechanic Street service station on the morning of October 15.

Temperature Reading

The temperature rose only to a 36 degree maximum here yesterday and at 10 p. m. had dropped back to 25 degrees above zero. Low for the previous 24 hour period was recorded at 29 degrees. Forecasts for today was cloudy weather with little change in temperature.

Lonaconing Native Is Named Judge In California

William A. Glen, a native of Lonaconing, born there February 20, 1905, has been selected for appointment by Gov. Earl Warren of California, as Superior Court Judge, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Sacramento.

Glen, a San Diego, Calif. attorney at law, where he began his private practice in 1930, was graduated from Stanford University in 1927, and received his Doctor of Jurisprudence degree from Stanford in 1929. He was admitted to law practice after passing the bar examination in October 1930. Five years later he was appointed Chief Deputy District Attorney at San Diego, but resigned to enter the firm of Higgs, Fletcher & Glen.

During World War II, he served in the Navy as a lieutenant commander for over three years.

The appointment, made to fill a vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Charles C. Haines, must be approved by the California State Bar, a formality.

It was recalled in Lonaconing last night that he was a son of the late Robert Glen of Lonaconing, who died about 35 years ago. Shortly thereafter William A. Glen's mother, who was Mary Anderson Glen, moved to Rock Springs, Wyo., where Glen received his high school education. Mrs. Glen is now residing in Green River, Wyo.

William Anderson Glen, after whom the judge is named, and John Glen, both residents of Lonaconing, are his uncles, and Mrs. Alec Scott, and Mrs. Clarence Castle, Lonaconing, are cousins.

Members of his family said they get letters from Glen frequently, and in his last letter to Lonaconing, Glen said he was being mentioned for the appointment. They expressed their pleasure last night when informed he had been named by Gov. Warren.

Local Man Breaks Right Hip In Fall

William T. Trail, 73, 115 North Cedar Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday morning for treatment of a fracture of the right hip suffered in a fall on an icy pavement. The hospital said his condition was satisfactory.

Dale Mellon, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Mellon, Ridgeley, was treated in the same hospital yesterday for bruises suffered when his arm was caught in a washing machine wringer.

Arthur Greble, 45, 129 Railroad Street, Westernport, was treated in Memorial Hospital yesterday for a fracture of the right forearm suffered in a fall on the ice. The West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company worker said he was on his way home from work when the accident occurred.

Coal Company Sues Sherman For $7,000

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday against William J. Sherman and Camille J. Sherman, by Harrison A. Kalbaugh and William M. Kalbaugh, partners trading as Kalbaugh and Son Coal Company, for $7,000.

Docketed by John T. Fey, attorney, the declaration states that prior to February, 1947, the plaintiffs and defendants were in dispute growing out of a claim for damages, claimed to have been sustained by the plaintiffs as a result of carrying on certain coal mining and loading operations.

During the month of last February, the declaration continues, the defendants, in consideration of a release from the plaintiffs agreed to and reached a settlement for $5,000.

Fey claims Sherman has failed to pay the claim and entered suit for $7,000.

BIRTHS

Allegany Hospital reported the following births yesterday:

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Emmart, Route 2, Creek Road, a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Crawford, 144 Bedford Street, a son, Thursday night.

Memorial Hospital reported the following births yesterday: Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hershberger, Grantsville, a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Twigg, Route 3, Williams Road a daughter.

Dairies And Union Still Deadlocked On New Contract

Although partial agreement has been reached on one issue, officials of Local 924, Dairy Workers Union, AFL, reported last night they were still deadlocked on all other issues on contract negotiations with five Cumberland area dairies.

Jack F. Moore, union president, said the firms are still refusing to make a wage offer for drivers adding the dairies said they feel "drivers are making enough" at the present time.

Moore said the five firms have offered inside workers a 42 hour work week on the basis of six seven hour days with time and one-half after 40 hours and a 15 cents an hour wage increase.

The union had asked either that the present 48 hour guaranteed week be reduced to 40 hours or that the inside workers be granted a substantial increase.

If the work week is reduced to 40 hours, the union wants the weekly wage to be kept the same as the present 48 hours, the union said.

Moore said there is a partial agreement on the vacation clause issue which he said he felt would be worked out satisfactorily. No progress has been made, however, on the sick leave clause asked by the men.

The dairies and the union did agree last night that four mechanics employed by the dairies will be included in the union agreement. Negotiations will be continued at a meeting to be held Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

Tax Collectors To Get Commission On Auto Fees

An order was passed by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to pay county tax collectors commission on money received from the Maryland Department of Motor Vehicles for fees on cars, trucks, and other motor vehicles.

Under the former system, tax collectors received a commission on personal property taxes collected on vehicles, but under the new fixed fee plan no property tax is assessed.

Commissioners said the change caused a loss of a fairly large amount of revenue to the collectors, and they did considerable work on the records and break-down of the funds for distribution to various corporate municipalities in the county.

In order to correct what the commissioners termed an inequity, the order was worded so that commissions will be retroactive to the time they took office, and covering the period under which the new state system has been in effect.

William A. Strother, tax collector for District No. 1, will receive one per cent. Collectors in Districts No. 2 and No. 3, will receive three per cent, since Cumberland is included in District No. 1, and this territory includes the majority of the vehicles and most of Allegany county's taxpayers.

Will Continue Work

Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson handed down an opinion in Circuit Court yesterday, in which receivers appointed for the Cresap Coal Company were instructed to continue the operation of the strip mines, and denied the right of lessors to cancel leases on land where coal is to be mined.

The jurists wrote, "It is an old principle of law that those seeking relief in equity must come into court with clean hands."

The list includes 48 names and has been submitted to Sheriff Edward R. Muir for issuance of summons.

Port Improvements Not Needed Now, Engineer States

Major capital improvements at the Municipal Airport are not needed at this time, according to John Cowles, Baltimore, acting district airport engineer.

Cowles was here Thursday to ascertain whether the city has decided to take advantage of an allocation of $75,000 made by the Civil Aeronautics Administration for the erection of an administration building. Any part of the $75,000 used would have to be matched by the city.

City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett informed Cowles he does not believe the city is interested at this time in further expenditures, but said that a final decision on releasing the money is up to the Mayor and Council.

Cowles said present administration facilities here are excellent compared to Salisbury, which handles 30 airline passengers daily. He added current facilities are sufficient for initial airline operation, although a radio tower may be needed when airline service is certified.

Cowles advised that the best policy would be to wait for the public to create a demand for further building.

If the city releases the $75,000 allocation, as is expected, Cowles said it will not prejudice a future request for financial assistance.

AAUW Executive Board Will Meet Today

A meeting of the executive board of Cumberland branch, American Association of University Women, will be held today at 1 p. m. at the Board of Education Building, according to Mrs. John J. Hafer, president.

Committee Urges Early Completion Of Savage Dam

Cited As Factor In Reducing Pollution

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—Early completion of the Savage River flood control dam near Luke, Md., was urged today by a committee of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.

The committee said the dam, which is about 65 or 70 per cent complete, would be an important factor in pollution reduction in the Potomac River Basin by maintaining a more even stream flow.

Members said they hope funds for finishing the job, started by WPA, may be supplied in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1948. The Original cost was estimated at $1,900,000, but the ram has deteriorated and costs have risen greatly since that estimate.

The commission ended a two-day session after hearing committee reports. The morning session was devoted largely to technical, off-the-record discussions of pollution problems in the Washington metropolitan area.

The commission, representing Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, will meet in April or May in Harrisburg, Pa., and will hold its annual session in August or September in Hagerstown, Md.

The technical committee recommended a step-up in the program of water sampling and checking of the flow in various streams of the basin.

The commission organized a new committee composed of representatives of local governments in the Basin.

Harry Hall, chief engineer for the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, Maryland, was named chairman. Other members include Mayor Thomas S. Post of Cumberland, Md.; James J. Corbalis, engineer of Fairfax County, Va.; I. G. Vass city manager of Waynesboro, Va.; Mayor Blair Haines, of Romney, W. Va.; and Mayor J. Paul Blundon, of Keyser, W. Va. Others will be named later.

The commission heard a report that Johns Hopkins University is engaging in a research project to determine the self-purifying capacity of the North Branch of the Potomac in the Cumberland, Md., area.

Reburial Service For Sgt. Leary To Be Held Wed.

KEYSER, W. Va.—A funeral service will be held next Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Evangelical United Brethren Church for Sgt. Benjamin F. Leary, 35, the second Mineral County veteran killed overseas, whose body will be returned here for reburial rites.

Rev. L. G. Bridgers, pastor, will officiate. Full military rites at the grave in Queen's Point Cemetery will be accorded by members of Nancy Hanks Post No. 3518, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The body will arrive here Monday.

Sgt. Leary was the son of Charles E. Leary, 402 South Mineral Street, Keyser, and the late Mrs. Leary, who died May 29, 1947.

He entered the service May 21, 1941, and trained at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Fort Wayne, Ind., and was stationed in Alaska until being discharged due to the 28-year-age limit on November 30, 1941.

On January 5, 1942, he re-entered the Army at Fort Lawson, Wash., and was stationed at Fort Ord, Calif., and Camp Butler, Va., before going overseas with the Ninth Infantry Artillery Battalion.

Sgt. Leary participated in the North African and Sicily campaigns and was then sent to England for further training.

He landed with invasion forces in Normandy on D-Day and fought through the battles for France and Belgium. He was killed in Belgium on November 18, 1944, while driving a truck through enemy fire. He was awarded the Bronze Star and Purple Heart posthumously.

He is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Raymond Shank, Mrs. Jessie Ritner, Mrs. William Gales and Mrs. Thomas Weese, all of Keyser; and two brothers, Charles E. Leary, Jr., and James Leary, both of Keyser.

A brother, Raymond Leary, an electrician's mate second class, was reported missing in action on September 22, 1944, when the minesweeper on which he was serving was lost at sea three days out of San Francisco.

Kelly Worker Burned On Hands And Face

Emery Lines Operation Threatened By Strike

Rubber Workers, Kelly Break Even In Case Rulings

Results Of October Hearings Announced

Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers, CIO, and the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company broke even in arbitration awards announced yesterday by Jacob J. Blair, Pittsburgh, as a result of hearings held here October 30.

In the first case, a grievance concerning whether downgrading is a proper disciplinary measure for repeated, proved or careless errors under the terms of the union's agreement, the arbitrator sustained the union contention that downgrading, as a disciplinary measure, is not permissible and ruled that the company is obligated to refer checkers responsible for careless mistakes in the shipping department to the Labor Department for placement or furlough.

Worker Not Affected

The umpire, however, pointed out that the ruling will not be applied to J. J. Angelletta, who is to be retained in his present position as trucker since the union concerned with the company in disciplinary downgrading up to the time Angelletta was affected.

The issue arose, the arbitrator pointed out, from the efforts of the company to reduce what it believed to be excessive errors in the shipping department at the plant and adopted the plan that checkers would be downgraded to truckers after three provable and careless mistakes.

Upholds Discharge

In the second award, the arbitrator declared that from the facts and arguments offered by the company and the union, and particularly the fact that W. W. Oglebay did "wilfully and deliberately" refuse a work assignment customarily a part of his job, the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company was justified in discharging the employe.

The question at the arbitration hearing was whether Oglebay was guilty of insubordination by his refusal to do work assigned and was, therefore, subject to discharge.

Oglebay, a union committeeman, was sent to the labor department September 9 when he refused to "strap" a car as directed by an assistant foreman the day after he had been downgraded from a checker in the shipping department to a trucker. The worker asserted the work was in dispute and refused to do the job.

Graham Offers Port Guarantee

William J. Graham, president of Cumberland Airways, Inc., yesterday offered to guarantee the city payment of $4,200 under his proposal to lease the Municipal Airport on a non-exclusive basis for another year.

His offer was contained in a telegram to T. Donald Shires, secretary of the Municipal Airport Commission.

Under the Graham plan, as outlined Wednesday, the city would pay for fire insurance on buildings, as well as provide hangar keepers liability, totaling about $900. This would make a net of $3,300.

The city would also have available for another operator half of the hangar storage building and half of the administration building from which to collect rent.

The Mayor and Council have been presented a summary of bids as received from four concerns by the commission, which was unable to make a recommendation due to a tie vote.

Woman Stoned In Rome Visited Here In August

Meryl Mackay, Cohasset, Mass., who was injured in Rome, Italy, this week, when Communist demonstrators and strikers stoned her jeep, is known in Cumberland and was a guest for several days at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Gracie, 630 Washington Street, last August.

Mrs. Gracie said she and Miss Mackey have been friends for more than 20 years, and have visited each other on several occasions.

Miss Mackay is an assistant to the United States Consul in Rome, and was assigned to similar duties at Naples, and in North Africa during the war.

Associated Press dispatches, describing the stoning incident, said Miss Mackay suffered superficial head injuries.

Present Contract To Expire On Dec. 31

A transportation tieup of the Emery Coach Lines Cumberland Division loomed yesterday after between 20 and 25 employes rejected a proposal to extend a union-company working agreement beyond midnight, December 31, and pressed for a 22-cent hourly pay increase.

Johi M. Elliott, international representative of local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric, Railway and Motor Coach Employes, with which the company drivers and maintenance men are affiliated, said the company proposal was rejected at a meeting of the membership Friday at 1:30 a. m.

According to Elliott, the union demand for a 22 cents hourly pay boost was rejected by the company Thursday, and a request made to continue the present contract, under which employes receive a 98 cents hourly rate.

Company officials took the position, according to Elliott who was called here Wednesday "to avoid a strike," that a wage increase cannot be granted at this time "because the company has no money."

Vote Is Unanimous

The company suggestions were placed before the membership along with a financial statement of the company yesterday morning, but was rejected, and the negotiating committee was instructed to pursue its demands for the pay, increase, in addition to an $85 per year allowance for uniforms and improved working conditions.

The membership, according to Elliott, voted unanimously by secret ballot to authorize the Negotiating Committee to call a strike when and if it sees fit. Elliott, however, explained that he will not allow a strike until the contract, which expires at midnight, December 31, has run its course insofar as a contract renewal is concerned.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon between the company and Negotiating Committee, Elliott said an offer to submit the dispute to an impartial board of arbitration was refused by the company. The membership previously voted to continue work if the proposals were submitted to arbitration, he said.

Eliott, who called the demands "just and very fair,"said the Emery Motor Coach Lines has made "empty promises of a so-called bright future, that has never arrived."

"If the same policy of making no effort and refusing to arbitrate is continued," he said, "there will surely be a strike." The international representative said he had told company officials of the membership's feeling.

Elliott said he has been assured by the membership, however, that they will not attempt to call a strike until every possible step is taken to settle the dispute in a peaceful manner.

"I have tried the hardest I know how to get company officials to arbitrate," Elliott declared, adding that members of the union have agreed to abide by any ruling given by an arbitration board, which they believe would be the fairest to all concerned.

Terms Demands Fair

In describing the union demands as "fair" Elliott said the going wage rate in transportation businesses the size of the Emery lines is about $1.20 for the coming year. This past year, according to him, the rate has been $1.10 in businesses of comparative size.

The United States Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service will be notified Monday of the seriousness of the situation, union members declared, in an effort to avert a walkout.

The union demands were submitted to the company 60 days prior to the expiration of the present contract, union officials said, so as to comply with the Taft-Hartley Labor Laws, and also notified the Mediation and Conciliation service of the status 30 days later.

The new contract proposals were prepared by the local membership, without aid of the international union, Elliott explained, and added if the company makes an offer which the Negotiating Committee feels substantial the committee will immediately call a meeting of the membership to act on the offer.

A walkout of the drivers and maintenance men would affect transportation lines out of Cumberland as far east as Paw Paw and west to Oakland. Keyser, Westernport and Piedmont areas are also served by the Emery Motor Coach Lines.

Members of the Negotiating committee are Willis Sams, Cumberland, William Nesbit, Keyser, and Bernard Michaels, Cumberland.

R. L. Emery, president of the company, could not be contacted for a statement last night, and a clerk at the Emery bus terminal said he believed the president had gone to Martinsburg, W. Va.

Wife, Mate Who Planned 'Crime Career' Held Here

Police Hold Pair On Theft Charges

A 36-year-old paint salesman and his 24-year-old wife for whom he said he planned a "fantastic career of crime" were being held in the City Jail here last night on charges of stealing a fur coat in a local cocktail lounge.

Police said the pair, identified as Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Charles Welsh, most recently from Union, N. J., were apprehended yesterday morning and the husband explained his possession of "one of the most complete assortment of criminal tools ever seen" by saying that 30-days ago he planned to turn "tough guy" to please his wife whom he says he "loves deeply."

Mrs. Welsh, who is docketed under the name of Ruth Roma Welsh, Chicago, Ill., was arrested on Baltimore Street yesterday at 12:15 a. m. after officer C. W. Thompson recognized her as the woman who reportedly stole a fur coat valued at $150 from the Alibi Cocktail Lounge, Baltimore and Mechanic Street, Monday night.

The woman's arrest, police said, immediately led to the apprehension of her husband, who was staying at the Ideal Cabins, Long Hill, where he and his wife moved Tuesday from the Olympia Hotel, after he discovered she had stolen the coat.

A search of the cabin, according to police, resulted in their finding an "unbelieveable" assortment of paraphenalia, which Welsh said was purchased in Hagerstown after they planned to embark on a career of crime, which his wife "believed would be both profitable and exciting."

Police said Welsh had the same explanation for all of the items found which they listed as two .32 caliber automatic revolvers, two "vicious looking" toy pistols, a special police badge, one pair of toy handcuffs, two blackjacks, one stained with blood; a knife, two false wigs and a mustache, a set of New Jersey license plates, which Welsh admitted he stole, police said two hypodermic syringes along with a package of unidentified white powder, nine rings, eight bi celets, medical supplies and numerous papers.

Welsh, who police said was "intelligent," asserted the guns were purchased in Hagerstown for future use in "not too definitely planned holdups." The hypodermic syringes, Welsh told police were to be used to dope possible victims, and that the license plates were for use, "if and when they became hot" but were never put on the car, which he told police he purchased with his own money "before he got such a crazy idea."

Planned Disguises

A pair of rubber gloves was purchased to be sure that no finger prints would be left when they "pulled a job." The wigs and mustaches would disguise them when they were "working," police said Welsh told them.

Despite Welsh's incredible story of "detective story plans for a "career of crime," Maryland State and Cumberland City police were checking last night with all police departments throughout the East as well as the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to determine if the pair is wanted in connection with other crimes.

Detective Ernest M. Powell, who questioned both persons at headquarters yesterday, after Trooper William McElfish apprehended the husband, said the wife, clad in "slacks" told a story very similar to that related by her husband of "about a year and a half."

Particular attention was being paid by police to the blood stained blackjack, which Welsh said was purchased in Hagerstown at a pawn shop, but never used by either he or his wife.

The pair, according to police, came here from New York, where they had gone from Hagerstown, and were engaged in selling "cheap" costume jewelry, which they declared was purchased in a New York department store. Welsh, according to his statements, purchased the jewelry "cheap" and was selling it to gullible persons.

Throughout the questioning, police said, the husband, who declared he and his wife had recently purchased a home in Union, N. J., admitted that his plans sounded childish, and declared he was happy that they were arrested before the "crime career" got started.

The pair also confessed to stealing a coin-slot radio, two blankets, and a set of pillow cases from the Dagmar Hotel, Hagerstown, where they stayed while there.

Police Solve Two Of Three Thefts At Central YMCA

Continue Search For $114 Stolen

Two of three thefts committed at Central Y.M.C.A. were solved last night by City Police who are continuing investigation of the third in an effort to recover a wallet containing $114, stolen from Harry F. Parker Wednesday.

Detective Thomas J. See said he identified two local youths who stole a pocketbook belonging to Miss Ann Griffith, 808 Memorial Avenue, containing $32.85 and recovered $13 of the money.

The youths were summoned to police headquarters last night along with their parents and released only after promise of restitution was made, the detective said. He explained the youths divided the money and one purchased a second-hand bicycle with his share.

Five other youths from Cumberland also admitted last night that they had broken into the Y.M.C.A. cafeteria three times in recent weeks taking milk, food and silverware. Detective See said they also promised to make restitution.

The third theft, according to See, occurred Wednesday afternoon, but was not reported until Thursday by Parker, who told police he purchased a pencil at the "Y" and shortly after that missed his wallet. He said he observed three youths near him shortly before he missed the wallet containing $114.

Miss Griffith told police that her purse was taken from a table where she placed it while wrapping Christmas packages at the Y. The purse, with identification papers intact, was found by police stuffed in a sewer on Bellevue Street yesterday.

All of the youths were questioned last night and released after their parents had been informed of their actions, police said.

The entrances into the cafeteria have occurred on three occasions, according to police, and the five youths questioned about them admitted they had entered through a window. Police said all of the youths did not participate in the three entrances.

Holdup Suspect Released On Bond

Charles Kirby, 21, Mt. Savage, one of two men committed to Allegany County Jail Thursday in default of $1,000 in connection with the robbery of between $375 and $400 from a local truck driver, was released yesterday on bond.

Authorities said Kirby's companion, Lemuel M. Joyner, 21, also Mt. Savage, who was committed in default of the same amount of bond was still being held.

Kirby's bond was posted by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Kirby, in Trial Magistrates Court before Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., who ordered the two men held after they signed confessions admitting they robbed Victor Lepley as he parked his truck at a North Mechanic Street service station on the morning of October 15.

Detective Ernest Powell, (right), is investigating the case.

Lonaconing Native Is Named Judge In California

William A. Glen, a native of Lonaconing, born there February 20, 1905, has been selected for appointment by Gov. Earl Warren of California, as Superior Court Judge, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Sacramento.

Glen, a San Diego, Calif. attorney at law, where he began his private practice in 1930, was graduated from Stanford University in 1927, and received his Doctor of Jurisprudence degree from Stanford in 1929. He was admitted to law practice after passing the bar examination in October 1930. Five years later he was appointed Chief Deputy District Attorney at San Diego, but resigned to enter the firm of Higgs, Fletcher & Glen.

During World War II, he served in the Navy as a lieutenant commander for over three years.

The appointment, made to fill a vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Charles C. Haines, must be approved by the California State Bar, a formality.

It was recalled in Lonaconing last night that he was a son of the late Robert Glen of Lonaconing, who died about 35 years ago. Shortly thereafter William A. Glen's mother, who was Mary Anderson Glen, moved to Rock Springs, Wyo., where Glen received his high school education. Mrs. Glen is now residing in Green River, Wyo.

William Anderson Glen, after whom the judge is named, and John Glen, both residents of Lonaconing, are his uncles, and Mrs. Alec Scott, and Mrs. Clarence Castle, Lonaconing, are cousins.

It was recalled the Glens lived in "an old yellow house at Detmold, Lonaconing, which is still standing."

Members of his family said they get letters from Glen frequently, and in his last letter to Lonaconing, Glen said he was being mentioned for the appointment. They expressed their pleasure last night when informed he had been named by Gov. Warren.

Coal Company Sues Sherman For $7,000

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday against William J. Sherman and Camille J. Sherman, by Harrison A. Kalbaugh and William M. Kalbaugh, partners trading as Kalbaugh and Son Coal Company, for $7,000.

Docketed by John T. Fey, attorney, the declaration states that prior to February, 1947, the plaintiffs and defendants were in dispute growing out of a claim for damages, claimed to have been sustained by the plaintiffs as a result of carrying on certain coal mining and loading operations.

During the month of last February, the declaration continues, the defendants, in consideration of a release from the plaintiffs agreed to and reached a settlement for $5,000.

Fey claims Sherman has failed to pay the claim and entered suit for $7,000.

Dairies And Union Still Deadlocked On New Contract

Although partial agreement has been reached on one issue, officials of Local 924, Dairy Workers Union, AFL, reported last night they were still deadlocked on all other issues on contract negotiations with five Cumberland area dairies.

Jack F. Moore, union president, said the firms are still refusing to make a wage offer for drivers adding the dairies said they feel "drivers are making enough" at the present time.

Moore said the five firms have offered inside workers a 42 hour work week on the basis of six seven hour days with time and one-half after 40 hours and a 15 cents an hour wage increase.

The union had asked either that the present 48 hour guaranteed week be reduced to 40 hours or that the inside workers be granted a substantial increase.

If the work week is reduced to 40 hours, the union wants the weekly wage to be kept the same as the present 48 hours, the union said.

Moore said there is a partial agreement on the vacation clause issue which he said he felt would be worked out satisfactorily. No progress has been made, however, on the sick leave clause asked by the men.

The dairies and the union did agree last night that four mechanics employed by the dairies will be included in the union agreement. Negotiations will be continued at a meeting to be held Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

Tax Collectors To Get Commission On Auto Fees

An order was passed by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to pay county tax collectors commission on money received from the Maryland Department of Motor Vehicles for fees on cars, trucks, and other motor vehicles.

Under the former system, tax collectors received a commission on personal property taxes collected on vehicles, but under the new fixed fee plan no property tax is assessed.

Commissioners said the change caused a loss of a fairly large amount of revenue to the collectors, and they did considerable work on the records and break-down of the funds for distribution to various corporate municipalities in the county.

In order to correct what the commissioners termed an inequity, the order was worded so that commissions will be retroactive to the time they took office, and covering the period under which the new state system has been in effect.

William A. Strother, tax collector for District No. 1, will receive one per cent. Collectors in Districts No. 2 and No. 3, will receive three per cent, since Cumberland is included in District No. 1, and this territory includes the majority of the vehicles and most of Allegany county's taxpayers.

Will Continue Work

Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson handed down an opinion in Circuit Court yesterday, in which receivers appointed for the Cresap Coal Company were instructed to continue the operation of the strip mines, and denied the right of lessors to cancel leases on land where coal is to be mined.

The jurists wrote, "It is an old principle of law that those seeking relief in equity must come into court with clean hands."

Port Improvements Not Needed Now, Engineer States

Major capital improvements at the Municipal Airport are not needed at this time, according to John Cowles, Baltimore, acting district airport engineer.

Cowles was here Thursday to ascertain whether the city has decided to take advantage of an allocation of $75,000 made by the Civil Aeronautics Administration for the erection of an administration building. Any part of the $75,000 used would have to be matched by the city.

City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett informed Cowles he does not believe the city is interested at this time in further expenditures, but said that a final decision on releasing the money is up to the Mayor and Council.

Cowles said present administration facilities here are excellent compared to Salisbury, which handles 30 airline passengers daily. He added current facilities are sufficient for initial airline operation, although a radio tower may be needed when airline service is certified.

Cowles advised that the best policy would be to wait for the public to create a demand for further building.

If the city releases the $75,000 allocation, as is expected, Cowles said it will not prejudice a future request for financial assistance.

AAUW Executive Board Will Meet Today

A meeting of the executive board of Cumberland branch, American Association of University Women, will be held today at 1 p. m. at the Board of Education Building, according to Mrs. John J. Hafer, president.

Committee Urges Early Completion Of Savage Dam

Cited As Factor In Reducing Pollution

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—(AP)—Early completion of the Savage River flood control dam near Luke, Md., was urged today by a committee of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.

The committee said the dam, which is about 65 or 70 per cent complete, would be an important factor in pollution reduction in the Potomac River Basin by maintaining a more even stream flow.

Members said they hope funds for finishing the job, started by WPA, may be supplied in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1948. The Original cost was estimated at $1,900,000, but the ram has deteriorated and costs have risen greatly since that estimate.

The commission ended a two-day session after hearing committee reports. The morning session was devoted largely to technical, off-the-record discussions of pollution problems in the Washington metropolitan area.

The commission, representing Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, will meet in April or May in Harrisburg, Pa., and will hold its annual session in August or September in Hagerstown, Md.

The technical committee recommended a step-up in the program of water sampling and checking of the flow in various streams of the basin.

The commission organized a new committee composed of representatives of local governments in the Basin.

Harry Hall, chief engineer for the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, Maryland, was named chairman. Other members include Mayor Thomas S. Post of Cumberland, Md.; James J. Corbalis, engineer of Fairfax County, Va.; I. G. Vass city manager of Waynesboro, Va.; Mayor Blair Haines, of Romney, W. Va.; and Mayor J. Paul Blundon, of Keyser, W. Va. Others will be named later.

The commission heard a report that Johns Hopkins University is engaging in a research project to determine the self-purifying capacity of the North Branch of the Potomac in the Cumberland, Md., area.

The sessions were presided over by Raymond V. Long, of Richmond, commission chairman.

On January 5, 1942, he re-entered the Army at Fort Lawson, Wash., and was stationed at Fort Ord, Calif., and Camp Butler, Va., before going overseas with the Ninth Infantry Artillery Battalion.

Sgt. Leary participated in the North African and Sicily campaigns and was then sent to England for further training.

Emery Lines Operation Threatened By Strike

Rubber Workers, Kelly Break Even In Case Rulings

Results Of October Hearings Announced

Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers, CIO, and the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company broke even in arbitration awards announced yesterday by Jacob J. Blair, Pittsburgh, as a result of hearings held here October 30.

In the first case, a grievance concerning whether downgrading is a proper disciplinary measure for repeated, proved or careless errors under the terms of the union's agreement, the arbitrator sustained the union contention that downgrading, as a disciplinary measure, is not permissible and ruled that the company is obligated to refer checkers responsible for careless mistakes in the shipping department to the Labor Department for placement or furlough.

Worker Not Affected

The umpire, however, pointed out that the ruling will not be applied to J. J. Angelletta, who is to be retained in his present position as trucker since the union concerned with the company in disciplinary downgrading up to the time Angelletta was affected.

The issue arose, the arbitrator pointed out, from the efforts of the company to reduce what it believed to be excessive errors in the shipping department at the plant and adopted the plan that checkers would be downgraded to truckers after three provable and careless mistakes.

Upholds Discharge

In the second award, the arbitrator declared that from the facts and argument offered by the company and the union, and particularly the fact that W. W. Oglebay did "wilfully and deliberately" refuse a work assignment customarily a part of his job, the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company was justified in discharging the employe.

The question at the arbitration hearing was whether Oglebay was guilty of insubordination by his refusal to do work assigned and was, therefore, subject to discharge.

Oglebay, a union committeeman, was sent to the labor department September 9 when he refused to "strap" a car as directed by an assistant foreman the day after he had been downgraded from a checker in the shipping department to a trucker. The worker asserted the work was in dispute and refused to do the job.

Graham Offers Port Guarantee

William J. Graham, president of Cumberland Airways, Inc., yesterday offered to guarantee the city payment of $4,200 under his proposal to lease the Municipal Airport on a non-exclusive basis for another year.

His offer was contained in a telegram to T. Donald Shires, secretary of the Municipal Airport Commission.

Under the Graham plan, as outlined Wednesday, the city would pay for fire insurance on buildings, as well as provide hangar keepers liability, totaling about $900. This would make a net of $3,300.

The city would also have available for another operator half of the hangar storage building and half of the administration building from which to collect rent.

The Mayor and Council have been presented a summary of bids as received from four concerns by the commission, which was unable to make a recommendation due to a tie vote.

Woman Stoned In Rome Visited Here In August

Meryl Mackay, Cohasset, Mass., who was injured in Rome, Italy, this week, when Communist demonstrators and strikers stoned her jeep, is known in Cumberland and was a guest for several days at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Gracie, 630 Washington Street, last August.

Mrs. Gracie said she and Miss Mackey have been friends for more than 20 years, and have visited each other on several occasions.

Miss Mackay is an assistant to the United States Consul in Rome, and was assigned to similar duties at Naples, and in North Africa during the war.

Associated Press dispatches, describing the stoning incident, said Miss Mackay suffered superficial head injuries.

Present Contract To Expire On Dec. 31

A transportation tieup of the Emery Coach Lines Cumberland Division loomed yesterday after between 20 and 25 employes rejected a proposal to extend a union-company working agreement beyond midnight, December 31, and pressed for a 22-cent hourly pay increase.

Johi M. Elliott, international representative of local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric, Railway and Motor Coach Employes, with which the company drivers and maintenance men are affiliated, said the company proposal was rejected at a meeting of the membership Friday at 1:30 a. m.

According to Elliott, the union demand for a 22 cents hourly pay boost was rejected by the company Thursday, and a request made to continue the present contract, under which employes receive a 98 cents hourly rate.

Company officials took the position, according to Elliott who was called here Wednesday "to avoid a strike," that a wage increase cannot be granted at this time "because the company has no money."

Vote Is Unanimous

The company suggestions were placed before the membership along with a financial statement of the company yesterday morning, but was rejected, and the negotiating committee was instructed to pursue its demands for the pay, increase, in addition to an $85 per year allowance for uniforms and improved working conditions.

The membership, according to Elliott, voted unanimously by secret ballot to authorize the Negotiating Committee to call a strike when and if it sees fit. Elliott, however, explained that he will not allow a strike until the contract, which expires at midnight, December 31, has run its course insofar as a contract renewal is concerned.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon between the company and Negotiating Committee, Elliott said an offer to submit the dispute to an impartial board of arbitration was refused by the company. The membership previously voted to continue work if the proposals were submitted to arbitration, he said.

Eliott, who called the demands "just and very fair,"said the Emery Motor Coach Lines has made "empty promises of a so-called bright future, that has never arrived."

"If the same policy of making no effort and refusing to arbitrate is continued," he said, "there will surely be a strike." The international representative said he had told company officials of the membership's feeling.

Elliott said he has been assured by the membership, however, that they will not attempt to call a strike until every possible step is taken to settle the dispute in a peaceful manner.

"I have tried the hardest I know how to get company officials to arbitrate," Elliott declared, adding that members of the union have agreed to abide by any ruling given by an arbitration board, which they believe would be the fairest to all concerned.

Terms Demands Fair

In describing the union demands as "fair" Elliott said the going wage rate in transportation businesses the size of the Emery lines is about $1.20 for the coming year. This past year, according to him, the rate has been $1.10 in businesses of comparative size.

The United States Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service will be notified Monday of the seriousness of the situation, union members declared, in an effort to avert a walkout.

The union demands were submitted to the company 60 days prior to the expiration of the present contract, union officials said, so as to comply with the Taft-Hartley Labor Laws, and also notified the Mediation and Conciliation service of the status 30 days later.

The new contract proposals were prepared by the local membership, without aid of the international union, Elliott explained, and added if the company makes an offer which the Negotiating Committee feels substantial the committee will immediately call a meeting of the membership to act on the offer.

A walkout of the drivers and maintenance men would affect transportation lines out of Cumberland as far east as Paw Paw and west to Oakland. Keyser, Westernport and Piedmont areas are also served by the Emery Motor Coach Lines.

Members of the Negotiating committee are Willis Sams, Cumberland, William Nesbit, Keyser, and Bernard Michaels, Cumberland.

R. L. Emery, president of the company, could not be contacted for a statement last night, and a clerk at the Emery bus terminal said he believed the president had gone to Martinsburg, W. Va.
